more than 150 objects that bring to the fore Brush's astonishing work with jewels. Far from the products of the world of commercial jewelry, these are jewel-encrusted objects of virtue and fantasy that reflect not just the artist's rigorous personal aesthetic and mastery of technique but his lifelong fascinations with philosophy and Asian thought and his exhaustive knowledge of the history of precious stones. With photography made of the objects in situ inside Brush's studio in New York City, this book presents not only a catalog of his jewel work to date but also an ethereal portrait of the artist himself. Housed in a slipcase with photographs by Takaaki Matsumoto and an illuminating text by Vivienne Becker, this is an intimate study of the work of a master artist and a beautiful object in itself.

In 1785 lands of the Northwest Territory were offered for sale to the public. By 1800 four land offices were established and sales from the Zanesville office, which included tracts originally reserved for the Marietta and Steubenville offices and more importantly parts of the United States Military District reserved for veterans of the Revolutionary War, form the basis of this volume. In addition, this volume also includes records from the Steubenville office for the period 1820-1840, the first twenty years of sales records having already been published. In tabular format, this volume has a complete list of 22,770 persons who bought land in central and east-central Ohio between 1800 and 1840. Data includes the name of the purchaser in alphabetical order, date of purchase, place of residence at the time of purchase, and the range, township, and section of the purchased land, thus enabling the researcher to ascertain the exact location of the ancestor's land. Daniel Brush - Thirty years' work : [to coincide with the Exhibition Daniel Brush - Thirty Years' Work, 31 May - 30 June 2007, Phillips de Pury & Company]. [1, Hauptbd.] Daniel Brush, 2007 Daniel Brush Daniel Brush, Daniel Brush: Thinking about Monet Daniel Brush, 2024-02-10

When he was a schoolboy, Daniel Brush took weekend art classes at the Cleveland Museum of Art. After class, he and the other students passed through a room of paintings by Claude Monet, who Brush grew to loathe. Put off by the pasty oil paint, the sweet colors, and the small sizes, he remained firm in his distaste for the Impressionist master until one day he saw an 8 x 10 transparency of a Monet that a collector and friend was considering acquiring. Seeing the light shining through the transparency stunned him and sparked an obsession with the light that Monet captured in oil paint. Thinking about Monet contains 60 of the more than 100 steel sculptures Brush created as meditations on light. The artist hand-carved the same steel for each palm-sized object, but each one displays distinct properties of color and light. Imbued with a timeless quality and mesmerizing in the intricacy and daring of the fabrication, Brush's objects bear comparison with the work of historical masters. In his lifetime, Brush developed a rigorous and unique aesthetic, marked by its intellectual force, mastery of techniques, and an understanding of the scientific properties of materials. His idiosyncratic, contemplative work marks a journey of evolving mastery and embodies a deeply expressive voice in American art. This small, jewel-like book is covered in printed silk cloth, and all the sculptures are reproduced at their original size. The reproductions display Brush's exceptional and unique artistic vision. Nicolas Bos, president of Van Cleef and Arpels, contributes a short
