Developmental Dilemmas:

Developmental Dilemmas William D. Ferguson, 2026-03-12 Why do well meaning developmental policies fail Power intervenes Consider the recent collapse of the peace agreement between the Colombian government and FARC guerillas Achieving inclusive development entails resolving collective action problems of forging cooperation among agents with disparate interests and understandings Resolution relies on developing functional informal and formal institutions Powerful agents shape institutional evolution because they can This Element outlines a conceptual framework for policy relevant inquiry It addresses the concept of power noting sources instruments manifestations domains of operation and strategic templates After discussing leadership following and brokerage it addresses institutional entrepreneurship Institutional entrepreneurs develop narratives and actions to influence incentives and interpretations of social norms and identities foundations of strategic interactions that shape institutional evolution This approach facilitates inquiry into the roots and consequences of context specific developmental dilemmas background for developmental policy analysis This title is also available as open access on Cambridge Core Dilemmas of Political Development Monte Palmer, 1985

Understanding Motor Development: Infants, Children, Adolescents, Adults Jacqueline D Goodway, John C Ozmun, David L Gallahue, 2019-10-23 A best selling text Understanding Motor Development Infants Children Adolescents Adults provides students and professionals with both an explanatory and a descriptive basis for the processes and products of motor development Covering the entire life span this text focuses on the phases of motor development and provides a solid introduction to the biological affective cognitive and behavioral aspects within each developmental stage The student is presented with the most up to date research and theory while the Triangulated Hourglass Model is used as a consistent conceptual framework that brings clarity to understanding infant childhood adolescent and adult motor development

State Building and Late Development David Waldner, 2018-05-31 Why does state building sometimes promote economic growth and in other cases impede it Through an analysis of political and economic development in four countries Turkey Syria Korea and Taiwan this book explores the origins of political economic institutions and the mechanisms connecting them to economic outcomes David Waldner extends our understanding of the political underpinnings of economic development by examining the origins of political coalitions on which states and their institutions depend He first provides a political model of institutional change to analyze how elites build either cross class or narrow coalitions and he examines how these arrangements shape specific institutions state society relations the nature of bureaucracy fiscal structures and patterns of economic intervention He then links these institutions to economic outcomes through a bargaining model to explain why countries such as Korea and Taiwan have more effectively overcome the collective dilemmas that plague economic development than have others such as Turkey and Syria The latter countries he shows lack institutional solutions to the problems that surround productivity growth The first book to compare political and economic development in these two regions State Building and Late Development draws on and contributes to arguments from political sociology and political economy Based on a rigorous research design the work offers both a finely drawn comparison of development and a compellingly argued analysis of the character and consequences of precocious Keynesianism the implementation of Keynesian demand stimulus policies in largely pre industrial economies

Mid-life, Developmental and Clinical Issues William H. Norman,Thomas J. Scaramella,1980 The contributors to this volume demonstrate that middle aged adulthood encompasses more than specific years biological changes or orchestrations of earlier adaptations Rather professionals are now viewing the middle years as a period in the life cycle like other periods in which a person s past endowments and deficits as well as present opportunities and restraints all interact with consequences that influence changes in self perception and the boundary between self and the interpersonal world With these ideas in mind the book is intended to serve two major purposes The first purpose is to provide the reader with a survey of the accumulating literature on the social and personal factors that influence not only the alterations in the rhythm and timing of life events thus affecting perceptions of self and adaptational patterns but also the developing personality and future life prospects The second purpose of this book is to alert the reader to those developmental challenges options and potential problematic areas that have important implications in the clinical setting Each of the nine chapters that follow examines a particular area within the field of middle adulthood development Each chapter can be read as an up to date and authoritative contribution in the area it covers

Issues Affecting Psychological Development in Adolescents Patrick Kimuyu,2018-04-30 Essay from the year 2018 in the subject Health Public Health grade 2 Egerton University language English abstract Ordinarily the adolescence stage of human development among teenagers is usually masked by an array of psychological issues especially with regard to personal responsibility and character formation In most cases adolescents are observed to develop anti social behaviors such as juvenile delinquency suicide and substance abuse In addition some adolescents become rebellious to authority and they often y express identity issues It is believed that the adolescence stage of human development is the most sensitive especially with regard to health risks and identity formation crisis which may orient teenagers to unsafe social behavior leading to social and health harm From a psychological perspective adolescent s psychological development is profoundly influenced by family school and the social cultural environment within which they grow in Claiborne Drewery 2009 Some of the most significant aspects of adolescent development which are affected in the process of development include biopsychosocial development family disruption self esteem and cognitive abilities In addition psychological development among adolescents is faced with challenges in acquiring cognitive and social skills which are relevant in their ultimate social growth and mental health It is believed that the roles of the parents and family at large are fundamental in helping the adolescents to acquire appreciable social behavior for efficient advancement into the adulthood stage of development which requires a high level of social character especially with regard to the societal norms and cultural customs On the other hand adolescents are exposed to numerous health threats especially with regard to mental health owing to their possible exposure to substance abuse and peer pressure Therefore this essay will focus on the psychological developmental issues related the adolescence stage of human development It will give a comprehensive analysis of the adolescent s psychological development in both single and nuclear families especially with regard to the teenage ability to assume different roles in the family It will also highlight on health threats faced by adolescents during their development in their social cultural environment in relation to developmental theory

Palliative Care within Mental Health David B. Cooper,Jo Cooper,2018-10-10 Palliative Care Within Mental Health Ethical Practice explores the comprehensive concerns and dilemmas that occur surrounding people experiencing mental health problems and disorders Working beyond narrow stereotypical definitions of palliative care as restricted to terminal cancer patients this balanced and thought provoking volume examines the many interrelated issues that face the individual families and caregivers setting the groundwork for improved ethical relationships and interventions Chapters by experts and experienced practitioners detail the challenges concerns and best practices for ethical care and responses in a variety of individual and treatment contexts This is an essential and thoughtful new resource for all those involved in the fast developing field of palliative mental health

Community Organizing and Development Herbert J. Rubin,1992 The text provides a comprehensive introduction to the wide variety of approaches that guide social change social activism and community building work Community Organizing and Development links various theories of organizing to the techniques and tactics of practice It is vividly illustrated using real life practice examples Handbook of Family Development and Intervention William C. Nichols,2000-02-25 Like all complex living systems a family during its life course proceeds through predictable stages of development Yet every family is different its uniqueness defined and continually redefined by an open ended array of structural biological and sociocultural variables And as with all living things a family s continued well being depends upon its ability to adapt to changes arising from both within the family system and without First postulated in the 1940s these basic ideas constitute the conceptual core of modern family development theory From them has blossomed an impressive body of knowledge about family health and illness without which much of the progress occurring in family therapy over the past half century would not have been possible This book does much to promote continued progress in the practical application of family development theory by affording family therapists an unparalleled opportunity to acquaint themselves with the most important trends in family development theory to emerge over the past decade In it you will find contributions from leading theorists researchers and clinicians arranged so as to provide a systematic treatment of the latest thinking on family development seen from both the systemic viewpoint and that of individual members of the system Comprehensive in scope this book explores the patterns processes and dynamics inherent in traditional families as well as in important structural variants such as single parent and gay and lesbian families and families with special needs and problems including divorce physical abuse and disabilities Since progress in the social sciences is as much about formulating viable new ways of seeing as it is about determining quantifiable facts the editors offer equal time to an array of influential and sometimes radically conflicting schools of thought including sociobiology social psychology constructionism multiculturalism postmodernism and feminism Mainstream family therapists will find much in this handbook that they will consider controversial In some cases readers may even be outraged by the views expressed Yet thanks to the high caliber of scholarship intellect and professionalism evidenced throughout none of the ideas advanced in Handbook of Family Development and Intervention can be easily dismissed and all have something of value to offer the thoughtful dedicated family therapist Handbook of Family Development and Intervention is a valuable professional resource for all couples and family therapists It is also must reading for graduate students in family psychology family therapy social work and counseling In this magnificent volume the editors make a major contribution that integrates individual and family development concepts and therapeutic applications by bringing together scholarly yet fresh contributions The inclusion of various family forms and of families with special needs makes this volume especially relevant to the treatment of contemporary families as we enter the new millennium This superb Handbook should be mandatory reading and an excellent reference for teachers researchers and therapists at all levels of development Celia J Falicov PhD President 1999 2001 American Family Therapy Academy Emotional Problems of Development in Children Martin Herbert,1974

Adolescent Cardiac Issues, An Issue of Pediatric Clinics Richard Humes, 2014-02-28 Most physicians entering the field of pediatric cardiology are drawn to it by an interest in the wide variety of congenital heart defects which present at various ages Most congenital heart disease will be evident in early life presenting with cyanosis heart murmur congestive heart failure or shock Textbooks in pediatric cardiology are filled overwhelmingly with chapters on the various congenital heart lesions which are encountered both rare and common However practicing pediatric cardiologists will be quick to point out that a significant number of referrals to any practice do not involve congenital heart problems Reviewing our own statistics at the Children s Hospital of Michigan Cardiology Center for the past two years 2010 2012 reveals that outpatient visits for new patient consultations examined by age groups are less than 1 year of age 11% 1 5 years 23% 6 10 years 21% 11 18 years 45% Retrospective data collected from billing codes as in this brief survey may imprecise However it does provide a snapshot of the usual referral problems encountered by pediatric cardiologists In our practice the most common overall reason for referral in all ages was heart murmur constituting 26% of total referrals Second were rhythm and rhythm related problems inclusive of palpitations abnormal ECG and diagnosed premature beats constituted 19% of the total In the age group of interest for this book of 11 18 years the most common presenting issues were rhythm related 23% and chest pain 23% followed by syncope or dizziness 19% and heart murmur 12% Congenital heart disease diagnoses encountered in the 11 to 18 year age group comprised only 6 5% of referrals within that age group It is likely that many of these were not new diagnoses with a few exceptions but rather represented transfers to our practice Our own outpatient clinical experience reveals that the majority of outpatients referred by pediatricians for pediatric cardiology evaluation are between the ages of 11 and 18 The majority of these new referrals are not for congenital heart disease Our intent for this edition of Pediatric Clinics of North America is to describe the types of problems which seem to be of concern to the pediatric community within this age group and to describe strategies for evaluation

Improving Struggling Schools D. Brent Stephens, 2010 Improving Struggling Schools draws on a blend of case studies and the emerging body of research on failing schools to identify patterns in the challenges they face Over the last few years state accountability systems across the country have directed an increasingly bright light at the problem of chronically underperforming schools The problem is hardly new but the sheer number of failing schools facing takeover and restructuring is unprecedented This crisis is rapidly becoming the leading concern of the accountability movement Arguing that school improvement is a developmental process Stephens points out that struggling schools look very different and need very different kinds of support as they move from stage to stage He outlines a new approach that takes into account the patterns of growth and change in troubled schools the foundational dilemmas schools face as they navigate this trajectory and the overarching need to overcome the isolation and confusion that so often thwart schools efforts to move forward

Developmental Issues in the Clinical Treatment of Children Wendy K. Silverman, Thomas H. Ollendick, 1999 Developmental and Clinical Issues in the Treatment of Children is the first volume to address the needs of practicing clinicians and other professionals who work in applied mental health settings It represents the first interface of clinical child psychology developmental psychopathology specific child disorders and contextual issues This text s primary purpose is to bring these areas together to build upon the current knowledge base about children child problems and child treatment In summary this compendium integrates the major clinical and developmental issues involved in the real treatment of children The contents of each chapter are relevant to the needs and concerns of practitioners while based on findings from the empirical literature
