The Devil May Care Tony Horwitz, 2003 Stripped naked and pursued across cactus studded plains by a band of armed Blackfoot Indians John Colter escaped certain death to become the one of the most durable characters in western American history But Colter's harrowing tale was not beyond the ordinary when compared to the adventures of other American explorers In The Devil May Care popular historian and travel writer Tony Horwitz has culled through the American National Biography and selected fifty stirring biographies of adventurers who had no one's footsteps to follow in and yet contributed enormously to our understanding of the world Horwitz introduces us to fascinating individuals such as John Ledyard the first American to see what would become the Pacific Northwest and Elisha Kent Kane America's first arctic hero who stumbled upon an extremely strange remedy for scurvy while icebound off of Ellesmere Island Having set off into the unknown many times himself as a foreign correspondent Horwitz brings a subtle sense of humor and a reporter's eye for detail to a collection that offers a glimpse inside the lives of historic Americans who brazenly challenged danger as they pursued their wanderlust to extreme climates and forbidding environments Beginning with a short essay Horwitz seeks his own definition of exploration drawing on some of his research into the voyages of Captain James Cook and considering its larger implications throughout history Archival photographs as well as a lively and personal introduction to each story by Horwitz further enhance the appeal of a volume that winds its way through several centuries of American exploration affirming that the best adventure stories are the true ones

The Spirit of the Nation, 1844 The Spirit of the Nation Thomas Osborne Davis, Thomas Davis, 1845 A Dictionary of Anglo-American Proverbs & Proverbial Phrases, Found in Literary Sources of the Nineteenth and Twentieth Centuries George B. Bryan, Wolfgang Mieder, 2005 A Dictionary of Anglo American Proverbs Proverbial Phrases Found in Literary Sources of the Nineteenth and Twentieth Centuries is a unique collection of proverbial language found in literary contexts. It includes proverbial materials from a multitude of plays, autobiographies of well-known actors like Britain's Laurence Olivier, songs by William S. Gilbert or Lorenz Hart, and American crime stories by Leslie Charteris. Other authors represented in the dictionary are Horatio Alger, Margery Allingham, Samuel Beckett, Lewis Carroll, Raymond Chandler, Benjamin Disraeli, Edward Eggleston, Hamlin Garland, Graham Greene, Thomas C. Haliburton, Bret Harte, Aldous Huxley, Sinclair Lewis, Jack London, George Orwell, Eden Phillpotts, John B. Priestley, Carl Sandburg, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Jesse Stuart, Oscar Wilde, and more. Many lesser-known dramatists, songwriters, and novelists are included as well, making the contextualized texts to a considerable degree representative of the proverbial language of the past two centuries. While the collection contains a proverbial treasure trove for paremiographers and paremiologists alike, it also presents general readers interested in folkloric, linguistic, cultural, and historical phenomena with an accessible and enjoyable selection of proverbs and proverbial phrases.

Against All Odds Aline Hanna, 2010-09-07 This collection of Poetry was compiled by my late father George Matthews who in his teenage years enlisted in the Army in World War One. He was sent to France and seriously wounded. He did not talk much about the War; veterans are not inclined to talk about their experiences and all the horrors they endured, but he did tell me he remembered the shell hitting the trench in which he was. He remembers running for cover, but when he was found, he was thought to be dead. He was not, however, and possibly due to the delay in finding this out, gangrene had set in and he had to have his right arm and left leg amputated. During his stay in hospital in London, he underwent thirteen operations, and right up until he died at the age of 62, there were still pieces of shrapnel embedded in his body. He was the most wonderful father to me, and we shared many things, including his love of music and flowers. He had a wonderful bass voice and sang in concerts many times. He was the most courageous man I have ever met, nothing daunted him; he even walked without the aid of a cane or crutch. He had, however, to learn to write with his left hand, and by way of practice, gathered up this collection of poetry. His book was discovered years after his death, and because of the effort it must have been for him to do this, I thought I should try in some way to compile this collection in book form. His writing was so clear, it took no effort on my part to make a copy. I have included some words I wrote after he died, expressing my love and admiration for him, called The Dearest One I Knew. I hope you enjoy the variety of his work, and on next Armistice Day, spare a thought for men like him who survived the horrors of war and still do, but face life with courage and fortitude.

Aline Hanna Matthews Ainslee's, 1903 The Rogue William Edward Norris, 1889 The Devil May Care David Housewright, 2014-06-03 Riley Brodin is the granddaughter of Walter Muehlenhaus, a man as rich, powerful, and connected as anyone since the days of J. P. Morgan. Despite her family's connections, it's McKenzie she reaches out to when her relatively new boyfriend goes missing. Despite his reservations about getting involved with the Muehlenhaus family again, Mac McKenzie agrees to look for one Juan Carlos Navarre. What he finds, though, is a man who appears to be a ghost. The house mansion really he told Riley he owned is actually a rental barely lived in and practically devoid of personal effects The restaurant he claimed to own is owned by another and Navarre merely an investor He apparently has no friends no traceable past and McKenzie isn't the only one looking for him Whoever Juan Carlos Navarre is and wherever he's gone the one thing that is clear is that he's trouble and is perhaps someone as Riley's family makes clear better out of the picture Unfortunately for everyone McKenzie likes trouble and trouble likes him in The Devil May Care by David Housewright Slang and Its Analogues John Stephen Farmer, 1891 The Poetry of Robert Burns Robert Burns, 1897 Rear Admiral Byrd and the Polar Expeditions Coram Foster, 1930 With an account of his life and achievements A Modern English Grammar on Historical Principles Otto Jespersen, 1922 Roget's International Thesaurus of English Words and Phrases Christopher Orlando Sylvester Mawson, 1911 Film News, 1930 Handicraft, 1903 Charles Lever, His Life in His Letters Charles Lever, 1906
