

OLENA BEREHOVA, DIALOH KULTUR: OBRAZ INSHOHO V MUZYCHNOMU UNIVERSUMI [DIALOGUE OF CULTURES: THE IMAGE OF THE OTHER IN THE MUSICAL UNIVERSE]

Kyiv: Institute of Cultural Research, National Academy of Arts of Ukraine, 2020, pp. 304. ISBN 978-966-2241-60-0

Olena Berehova's monograph was written within the framework of the core research project 'Dialogue of Cultures in a Postmodern World: Dynamics of Self-Organisation and Globalisation Challenges' conducted by the Institute of Cultural Studies of the National Academy of Arts of Ukraine. The author's main achievement is an imagological analysis of musical works in various genres by Ukrainian and foreign composers written around the turn of the twenty-first century. That approach inaugurated a new direction to comparative research in Ukrainian cultural studies and musicology, namely, musical imagology and engendered new assumptions about the relevance and prospects for further development of the issue of the Other and the Self-Other relationship in culture. Contemporary Ukrainian composers' works appear in the monograph as the Self, with foreign music portrayed as a generalised image of the Other ('heteroimage'). Just as a person's personality is formed through interaction with other people, so national cultural identity is formed in dialogue with other cultures. In her monograph, taking specific musical works as examples, Berehova shows that the imagological approach allows for the study of artistic images objectified in works of art, revealing the specificities of the figurative perception of some Other by different cultures, the development of relevant ideas about art, and intercultural dialogue.

The research tone of the book is set in the 'Preface', where the author considers and scientifically comprehends the dialogue of cultures through the prism of the imagological approach. In each of the five chapters of the monograph, Berehova draws on a wide range of specialist literature, constantly dialoguing with authors of scientific papers on issues related to the main topic of her study. Numerous apposite references to fundamental philosophical, culturological, literary, artistic and musicological works give the theoretical positions and conclusions of the monograph soundness and persuasiveness. The structure of the monograph is conceptually oriented and progresses dynamically towards the realisation of the set goal: from the substantiation of the author's own position on the researched problem, through multilevel analysis, to the generalisation of basic ideas and conclusions.

In the first chapter, 'The imagological approach in the study of contemporary artistic phenomena' (pp. 13-64), Berehova sets out the imagological approach in the field of musical cultural studies and art history. For the first time in Ukrainian musicology, she offers a definition of musical imagology: 'Musical imagology is a branch of musicology and musical culturology that examines images of the Self and the Other in works of musical art in order to establish their identity, originality and specificity, their common and distinctive features' (p. 26). Berehova conducts her imagological analysis of the image of the Other in the musical universe by using the inductive method, from partial to general, applying empirical data and analysis to systematise, generalise and arrive at conclusions.

She aimed to study the latest trends in the art of music in terms of intercultural dialogue. Presenting the imagosphere of mod-
