Conversations with Boulez Pierre Boulez, 1996 Amadeus: A giant of postwar music and the most powerful figure in the contemporary French music scene, Pierre Boulez talks about his career as one of the world's most controversial conductors and daring programmers of musical text. These candid interviews give us vintage Boulez: his bold views, enigmatic wit, practical wisdom, and uncompromising beliefs.

Boulez con C Deliege Daniel Boulud, 1984-12

Boulez on Conducting Pierre Boulez, 2003 Pierre Boulez is arguably the single most influential and controversial figure in the world of music today. As composer, conductor, and personality, his challenging views are lent a special authority by his very high standing as an interpreter of great composers such as Wagner, Debussy, Bartók, and Stravinsky. He regularly appears to great acclaim on concert platforms and in opera houses around the world. In these unique conversations with Cécile Gilly, he recalls not only the great moments of his career but brings penetrating insights into the art of conducting, including his views on other great composer-conductors: Berlioz, Wagner, Mahler, Strauss. Boulez speaks unusually frankly about his own rapport with conductors as a composer and how he sees the role of the conductor today.

Conversations with Boulez Pierre Boulez, Jean Vermeil, 1996 A giant of postwar music and the most powerful figure in the contemporary French music scene, Pierre Boulez is widely known to American and English audiences as both an important composer and as star conductor of the New York Philharmonic, the Cleveland Orchestra, the BBC Symphony Orchestra, and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. These candid interviews give us vintage Boulez: his bold views, enigmatic wit, practical wisdom, and uncompromising beliefs. Here the eminent composer, who has been called both a wild man of the avant-garde and the last true maestro, New York Times talks about being one of the world's most controversial conductors and daring programmers of musical taste. Boulez sometimes locks horns with French author Jean Vermeil, who confronts him with his past and prods him to discuss the future of music and orchestras. Boulez tells how and why he chose his battles and lays out his vision of the conductor's mission. He tells what he learned and didn't learn from other conductors and how he feels about the composers who compromise his repertoire, including Webern, Berg, Schoenberg, Stravinsky, Messiaen, with whom he studied, and of course Boulez himself.

Through the Looking-glass of Interculturality Fred Dervin, Hamza R'boul, 2022-10-31 This book starts from the premise that honest and constructive dialogue between scholars and educators of interculturality, especially from different geopolitical spheres, is needed more than ever. The book is about the important and yet contested notion of interculturality, a notion used in different fields of research. It was co-written by two scholars who have never met before and who got to know each other intellectually and personally in the process of writing this book, using interculturality as a looking glass. Re-negotiating meanings, ideologies, and their own identities in writing the chapters together the authors enter into multifaceted dialogues and intercommunicate sharing while accepting disagreements The co authors different profiles in terms of geography generation status preferred paradigms and multilingual identity amongst others are put forward confronted and mirrored in the different chapters leading to the joint negotiation of aspirations concerning interculturality in communication and education While describing their current takes on interculturality they also conduct autocritiques of their past and present engagement with the notion The following questions are also addressed Who is talking the most about interculturality in the world today Whose voices are not heard How to disrupt current hegemonies around the notion for real And how to promote epistemological plurality in the discourses and narratives shaping our understandings of the notion Autocritiquing is proposed as a way of unthinking and rethinking interculturality ad infinitum This book argues that engaging with the notion requires constant self reflection examining one s positionality and intersectionality listening to the voices that one projects onto the world of e g research and education and operating transformations in one s thinking trying out new paradigms ideologies and methods
