

Basic life-saving measures

Initial assessment steps: Look for any signs of life. A sign of life is the patient breathing, moving or reacting to you. If you find any signs of life, do not move the patient. Call the emergency services and stay with the patient until help arrives. If you find no signs of life, check the patient's airway, breathing and circulation. If the patient is not breathing, start CPR. If the patient is not breathing but has a pulse, start rescue breathing. If the patient is not breathing and has no pulse, start CPR. CPR consists of chest compressions and rescue breathing. CPR should be continued until the patient starts breathing or until help arrives.

Rescuing position: The rescuer should be positioned at the head of the patient, with their feet to the patient's feet. The rescuer should lean over the patient, with their arms around the patient's waist. The rescuer should perform the Heimlich maneuver by making a fist with one hand, placing the thumb side of the fist against the patient's upper abdomen, just below the xiphoid process and above the navel. Grasp the fist with the other hand and deliver a quick upward thrust.

Early cardiopulmonary resuscitation: CPR should be started as soon as possible. CPR consists of chest compressions and rescue breathing. CPR should be continued until the patient starts breathing or until help arrives.

Initial respiration: The rescuer should check the patient's airway, breathing and circulation. If the patient is not breathing, start rescue breathing. If the patient is not breathing but has a pulse, start rescue breathing. If the patient is not breathing and has no pulse, start CPR.

Step	Action
1	Check for responsiveness
2	Call for help
3	Check for breathing
4	Start CPR
5	Use an AED
6	Continue CPR until help arrives

Early defibrillation: An AED should be used as soon as possible. An AED is a device that can analyze the heart's rhythm and deliver an electric shock to the heart if necessary. An AED should be used on any patient who is not breathing and has no pulse.

Illustration of the Heimlich maneuver: The rescuer should stand behind the patient, wrap their arms around the patient's waist, and make a fist with one hand, placing the thumb side of the fist against the patient's upper abdomen, just below the xiphoid process and above the navel. Grasp the fist with the other hand and deliver a quick upward thrust.
