

The Dreadnought

In 1906, the Dreadnought meant a giant leap in naval technology. It caused a fierce weapons race with Germany that lasted all later relationships to get the general named dreadnought.

A REVOLUTIONARY DESIGN
The Dreadnought's design, called "all-big-gun," was a departure from the traditional design of a battleship, which carried a mix of different sized guns. It was the first battleship to use only one size of gun, and it was the first to use a turbine engine for its propulsion.

High technology

Even its most advanced turbine system, it was the fastest ship in the world. To this, a uniform battery of guns was added, one of the most advanced of their time.
