Research Awards Index ,1988 Cancer Models Michael Breitenbach,Jens Hoffmann,2019-02-05 Cancer research like research on other diseases highly depends on representative and reliable model systems In the Research Topic Cancer Models we collected original papers and review articles addressing the topic of tumor modeling from molecular biology biochemistry microorganisms cells and organoids fishes animals and xenografts up to computational cancer models and patient data analysis This representative eBook describes that there is not a single molecular defined tumor but rather a heterogenic and highly variable complex of different individual diseases This is what makes research on cancer so difficult expensive and explains the broad number of models needed for research Our authors describe new next generation sequencing based methods to analyze complex patterns of chromosomal aberrations in order to understand the molecular biology of tumorigenesis as well as the role of cellular senescence and dormancy in the aetiology of tumor formation and development of therapy resistance of tumors The current developments on 3D cultures are thoroughly reviewed as these models help to overcome the current limitations of cell cultures and allow a more accurate mimicry of the native cancer tissue including cellular heterogeneity and restore specific biochemical and morphological Reviews about tumor models in zebrafish different transgenic mouse strains and pigs conclude the book In the final two chapters of this volume the authors discuss the theoretical and mathematical models developed in cancer research

McKinney,1988-03-31 My ideas for this book have been evolving over the last several years as I have been working in the animal modeling area and have seen it change rather dramatically There have been tremendous advances both in methodology and in conceptualization yet the literature is scattered in journals encompassing many disciplines In particular there have been only very limited attempts to write about the philosophical conceptual and controversial issues in this field to pull together diverse findings and to provide some general perspective on its future As will probably be apparent I am a clinical psychiatrist who also has a fundamental interest in animal behavior especially primate social behavior I entered the field from a clinical research standpoint to develop some animal models of depression after being stimulated to do so by Dr William Bunney then at the National Institute of Mental Health and now at the University of California Irvine The field has grown rapidly since then and there is considerable research activity Indeed the research activity has grown more rapidly than our conceptualization of what animal models are and are not Animal preparations are now available for studying specific aspects of certain types of psychopathology Thoughtful workers in the animal modeling field no longer talk about comprehensive models but rather about more limited experimental preparations in animals for studying certain specific aspects of human psychopathology
