

Annotated Bibliography

The articles in this bibliography are devoted to the issues within the American school system and how it is failing their students. The original goal of the American school system was to provide education to students and allow them to become their best self. Parents trust the same school systems that are failing their children throughout their entire education. Schools are hindering their students from maturing and become to expensive for the average adult to continue onto secondary-school. The system used today is the same system that was developed in the 1900's, which is outdated and should be reformed to reflect today's generation. The evidence to support this claim is overwhelming and students desire better.

doi:<https://doi.org/10.1002/pits.22678>

Jacob L. DeBoer, Sam Allouche, Jennifer Vasquez, and Judith Rhodes, wrote the research article, 'Equitable practices in school mental health', they discuss the impacts of mental health awareness within schools. More then ever students need resources for mental health and adding them into their schools is the most efficient way to benefit everyone. The negative stigma towards mental health is addressed and the recommendations the future stakeholder to follow are given. The recommendations are focused to cater to all schools with in the school system to provide adequate resources. The authors address the current problems within the current methods of mental health resources and how it is not enough the address the growing need for these.

Gatto, J. T. (2019). Against School. Rereading America: Cultural Contexts for Critical Thinking and Writing, 114-122.

John Gatto, writes, 'Against School', which addresses the ongoing issues with the American school system. Gatto, goes into detail on how the school system was developed back in the 1900's and how it is not relevant anymore. Gatto, described the multiple issues within the school system from students not engaged with the curriculum and teachers not wanting to go above and beyond for the students. College is discussed for young adults to attend, but how it is becoming harder for lower income families to have this option. Gatto, discusses how the system is corrupt and needs to be reformed by legislators who have the ability to act.
