Fields, Farms and Colonists Tymon C. A. de Haas, 2011 In this study the author addresses two important issues in Roman archaeology. On the basis of a comparison of intensive field surveys in different parts of the Pontine region, central Italy, it is argued that detailed site and off-site collection strategies have much to offer in understanding site chronology and land use patterns. Setting the field survey data in a wider geographical and historical context, the author also explores the context and impact of the foundation of Roman colonies and rural tribes on rural settlement systems, as such contributing to current debates on the nature of early Roman colonization.

Handbook of Program Development for Health Behavior Research and Practice Steve Sussman, 2001 The Handbook of Program Development for Health Behavior Research and Practice guides the reader from program development theory through program activity analysis and selection, immediate impact studies and intermediate and long-term outcome measurement. The handbook consists of five parts providing a wealth of information about the history and rationale for engaging in health behavior program development, including a case study that shows how to apply the six-step program development model and ways of surmounting the hurdles to engaging in program development. The role of theory in program development, the use of assessment studies to fill in gaps in theory regarding what leads to health-related behavior and many issues and resources relevant to pooling information about prior interventions, Perceived efficacy, i.e. concept evaluation methods of activity selection including verbal and paper and pencil methods of selecting potentially useful activities, Immediate impact studies of activities and program creation, Ways to find immediate outcome measures that predict longer-term outcome measures and future issues to consider in the arena of health behavior program development. Each section consists of an overview, one or more commentaries from recognized theorists, researchers and practitioners in the health field and case studies that provide guidelines on addressing relevant aspects of program development. These case studies will provide useful information for discussion, research and application. In all this
