Agroecological Innovations Increasing Food Production With Participatory Development:

Agroecological Innovations Norman Thomas Uphoff,2013 The world's food supply needs to rise significantly yet both arable and water supplies per capita are decreasing Not only are modern agricultural methods beyond the reach of those suffering the greatest food insecurity but they are also ecologically damaging relying upon fossil energy and chemical inputs This volume offers a collection of innovative and diverse approaches to agricultural development Documented in 12 case studies these approaches are reliant upon greater knowledge skill and labour input rather than larger capital expenditure They are shown to increase yield substantially sometimes doubling or tripling output This volume presents the concepts and operational means for reorienting agricultural efforts towards these more environmentally friendly and socially desirable approaches in the developed as well as developing world

Agroecological Innovations: Can a More Agroecological Agriculture Feed a Growing World Population? Norman Thomas Uphoff,2002 Farmers, Subalterns, and Activists

Trent Brown,2018-07-05 In theory chemical free sustainable agriculture not only has ecological benefits but also social and economic benefits for rural communities By removing farmers expenses on chemical inputs it provides them with greater autonomy and challenges the status quo where corporations dominate food systems In practice however organisations promoting sustainable agriculture often maintain connections with powerful institutions and individuals who have vested interests in maintaining the status quo This book explores this tension within the sustainable farming movement through reference to three detailed case studies of organisations operating in rural India
