Global Film Color Sarah Street, Joshua Yumibe, 2024-05-17 Global Film Color: The Monopack Revolution at Midcentury explores color filmmaking in a variety of countries and regions including India, China, Japan, and Russia, and across Europe and Africa. Most previous accounts of color film have concentrated on early 20th-century color processes and Technicolor. Far less is known about the introduction and application of color technologies in the period from the mid-1940s to the 1980s when photochemical monopack color stocks came to dominate global film markets. As Eastmancolor, Agfacolor, Fujicolor, and other film stocks became broadly available and affordable, national film industries increasingly converted to color, transforming the look and feel of global cinema. Covering a broad range of perspectives, the chapters explore themes such as transnational flows, knowledge exchange, and transfer; the cyclical and asymmetrical circulation of technology in a global context; as well as the accompanying transformation of color film aesthetics in the postwar decades. Modernism: Literature and Film Raj Chandarlapaty, 2024-04-16 The primary purpose of Psychedelic Modernism: Literature and Film is to trace the development of ideas and perspectives from the writing and private ambitions of 20th-century modernist writers including Aldous Huxley. The purpose of the book is to offer a rough chronology during which ideas were first given a literary imagination, then transposed onto discussions of science and psychology, and then theoretically democratized to bring fruit to a relatively de-centered process where images, text, and interviews could re-conceptualize the modern Being from an admixture of modernist, historical, and pop roots that could express a greater moment in the human action. The work includes discussions from scientists such as Swiss chemist Albert Hofmann, rock stars such as Jerry Garcia, and unconfirmed mystics such as Carlos Castaneda. The primary focus of this work isn't literature per se, but the literary imagination as it may correspond to greater, wider, and more impactful goals than the writing of 20th-century fiction. While there is some outreach that favors de-centered models such as the Beat Generation, the author's primary purpose is to assemble an anthology covering the study and quests for knowledge from as many sides as could power the relative 1960s countercultural movement. Palestinian Cinema in the Days of Revolution Nadia Yaqub, 2018-07-01 Palestinian cinema arose during the political cinema movements of the late 1960s and early 1970s, yet it was unique as an institutionalized, though modest, film effort within the national liberation campaign of a stateless people. Filmmakers working within the Palestinian Liberation Organization PLO and through other channels filmed the revolution as it unfolded including the Israeli bombings of Palestinian refugee camps the Jordanian and Lebanese civil wars and Palestinian life under Israeli occupation attempting to create a cinematic language consonant with the revolution and its needs They experimented with form both to make effective use of limited material and to process violent events and loss as a means of sustaining active engagement in the Palestinian political project Palestinian Cinema in the Days of Revolution presents an in depth study of films made between 1968 and 1982 the filmmakers and their practices the political and cultural contexts in which the films were created and seen and their afterlives among Palestinian refugees and young filmmakers in the twenty first century Nadia Yaqub discusses how early Palestinian cinema operated within emerging public sector cinema industries in the Arab world as well as through coproductions and solidarity networks Her findings aid in understanding the development of alternative cinema in the Arab world Yaqub also demonstrates that Palestinian filmmaking as a cinema movement created and sustained under conditions of extraordinary precarity offers important lessons on the nature and possibilities of political filmmaking more generally
