AURA

As the human skin has seven layers, one on top of the other, the Aura is thought to be like a sheath of layers of colours which surrounds the entire body. Accordingly, all human beings (along with all other living things) have their own unique Auras. The Aura can be understood as an electromagnetic field of colours which extends to the reach of the outstretched arms. This vibrating field of energy represents the most subtle form of existence and reacts to all change. Clairvoyants and psychics can often see the Aura and make use of this special sensitivity in their healing methods. More commonly the Aura is acknowledged in phrases like 'feeling blue' or 'red with rage' or 'green with envy'.
