the region's physical and cultural remoteness helps to preserve the venerable ways of its black inhabitants but it can also marginalize the vital place of lowcountry blacks in the Atlantic World The essays which range in coverage from the founding of the Georgia colony in the early 1700s through the present era explore a range of topics all within the larger context of the Atlantic world Included are essays on the double edged freedom that the American Revolution made possible to black women the lowcountry as site of the largest gathering of African Muslims in early North America and the coexisting worlds of Christianity and conjuring in coastal Georgia and the links with variations to African practices A number of fascinating memorable characters emerge among them the defiant Mustapha Shaw who felt entitled to land on Ossabaw Island and resisted its seizure by whites only to become embroiled in struggles with other blacks Betty the slave woman who in the spirit of the American Revolution presented a list of grievances to her master and S Quash the Arabic speaking Muslim who arrived on one of the last legal transatlantic slavers and became a head man on a North Carolina plantation Published in association with the Georgia Humanities Council

African Dream Mahlatse Emmanuel Maile, 2019-08-06 What's an African child to do When his African dreams are shattered Right before his hopeful eyes Eyes red as roses As blood engorges his devilish eyes Tears racing down his face Like rain drops during a thunder storm Tears grow larger and larger As they collide become one with their siblings Losing all hope against his will What's an African child to do As his dreams fade away At the hands of rejection corruption nepotism As endless doors of opportunities vanishing At the sight of his presence For his skin colour leads with pride stands out amongst the masses Speaking louder than his voice As his voice goes unheard Slowly silenced with every rejection oppression What's an African child to do When his own brothers sisters turn against him Driven by greed as they eat alone Corruption coursing through their veins Left in the dark without a window of opportunity Silenced by power and deceit Being deprived of his birth rights Banished to poverty land Where his roots are deeply rooted But where his future repudiates

The African Dream Ajona Penhart, 2025-07-11 The African Dream Unity Forsaken Hope Rekindled Once upon a time Africa dared to dream A dream of unity Of a continent free from colonial chains speaking with one voice marching toward prosperity and power The African Dream Unity Forsaken Hope Rekindled is a powerful provocative and passionate account of how that dream was born and how it was betrayed In this sweeping narrative Ajona Penhart unpacks the rise of Pan Africanism the wave of independence that lit up the continent and the towering patriots who believed in a united Africa From Kwame Nkrumah's bold vision to the revolutionary spirit of Thomas Sankara this book pays tribute to the heroes who fought for an African future built on solidarity But the dream did not endure Through coups assassinations foreign interference tribal politics and economic fragmentation Africa lost its path Borders hardened leaders turned on each other and the continent became a battleground for outside powers Penhart asks the hard questions Why can't Africa unite Who benefited from its disunity And is there still hope Blending history political analysis and a poetic sense of justice Unity Forsaken Hope Rekindled is more than a chronicle of failure it is a blueprint for renewal With a rising generation of bold
