Kohn, 1998 Pollution and the Firm is an important book which presents new concepts of the marginal cost of substituting non pollutive for pollutive goods Technical in its approach it complements the other literature in the field and will be a significant contribution to the understanding of microeconomic issues in pollution control The book focuses on three main concepts substitutions in consumption emission abatement and exposure avoidance The first part considers the adjustment of the scope and combination of goods produced as a method for controlling pollution The author argues that pollution is controlled by increasing the relative price of the polluting good in the production process thereby reducing demand and subsequent production of the good In the second part the discussion is extended to include the possibilities of preventing or abating emissions in relation to three models first pollution prevention when non polluting inputs and processes are substituted for pollutants second when a proportion of the polluting output is recycled rather than being discarded and finally end of pipe
