Counseling Families From Insight To Intervention:

Counseling Families James P. Osterhaus, 1989 Christians are deeply concerned about the problems that tear families apart and leave various members with wounds that will not heal But the solutions that are sometimes offered are superficial they do not arise out of a keen awareness of what is happening Osterhaus wants to equip his readers with skills that will enable them to enter confidently into the complicated webs of family difficulties and clear away the obstructions Fly leaf

Handbook of Family Development and Intervention William C. Nichols, 2000-02-25 Like all complex living systems a family during its life course proceeds through predictable stages of development Yet every family is different its uniqueness defined and continually redefined by an open-ended array of structural biological and sociocultural variables And as with all living things a family's continued well-being depends upon its ability to adapt to changes arising from both within the family system and without First postulated in the 1940s these basic ideas constitute the conceptual core of modern family development theory From them has blossomed an impressive body of knowledge about family health and illness without which much of the progress occurring in family therapy over the past half century would not have been possible This book does much to promote continued progress in the practical application of family development theory by affording family therapists an unparalleled opportunity to acquaint themselves with the most important trends in family development theory to emerge over the past decade In it you will find contributions from leading theorists researchers and clinicians arranged so as to provide a systematic treatment of the latest thinking on family development seen from both the systemic viewpoint and that of individual members of the system Comprehensive in scope this book explores the patterns processes and dynamics inherent in traditional families as well as in important structural variants such as single parent and gay and lesbian families and families with special needs and problems including divorce physical abuse and disabilities Since progress in the social sciences is as much about formulating viable new ways of seeing as it is about determining quantifiable facts the editors offer equal time to an array of influential and sometimes radically conflicting schools of thought including sociobiology social psychology constructionism multiculturalism postmodernism and feminism Mainstream family therapists will find much in this handbook that they will consider controversial In some cases readers may even be outraged by the views expressed Yet thanks to the high caliber of scholarship intellect and professionalism evidenced throughout none of the ideas advanced in Handbook of Family Development and Intervention can be easily dismissed and all have something of value to offer the thoughtful dedicated family therapist Handbook of Family Development and Intervention is a valuable professional resource for all couples and family therapists It is also must reading for graduate students in family psychology family therapy social work and counseling In this magnificent volume the editors make a major contribution that integrates individual and family development concepts and therapeutic applications by bringing together scholarly yet fresh contributions The inclusion of various family forms and of families with special needs makes this volume especially relevant to the treatment of contemporary families as we enter the new millennium This superb Handbook should be mandatory reading and an excellent reference for teachers researchers and therapists at all levels of development Celia J Falicov PhD President 1999 2001 American Family Therapy Academy

Mental Health Service in the People's Republic of China Kam-Shing Yip, 2007

Being the world's most populated country the People's Republic of China shoulders the largest number of persons with mental illness in the world. According to related documents there are around 16 million persons with mental illness that necessitate prolonged treatment and rehabilitation. 30 million children and adolescents with behavioural and emotional problems, 6 million with persons with epilepsy and numerous elderly persons with mental problems. Facing these insurmountable needs of mental health services despite the drastic economic development in these decades there are various challenges for policy makers and caring professionals in providing adequate and qualitative services for persons with mental problems in China. To name a few these challenges include insufficient mental health facilities, a great diversity in social, cultural and political contexts among different regions in China, poor mental health literacy and highly inadequate financial support to mental health services. All these challenges occur both in fast growing urban cities where mental problems increase drastically within a highly competitive and stressful city life as well as in deprived rural areas where mental illnesses are neglected and ignored because of unsolvable poverty problems. This book tackles these problems head on.

STAR Buddy Training System, 1987 Abstract This training manual is designed for those who work with abused or neglected children. A workbook manual, a resource manual and a videocassette are included. The manual format requires two people, a guide and a trainee. The workbook discusses topics such as assessment and identification, reporting and advocacy and therapeutic intervention. The resource manual follows a similar format.

Multicultural Counseling and Psychotherapy Leroy G. Baruth, M. Lee Manning, 2003 Written to explore the lives and potential counseling problems of African American, Hispanic American, Asian American, European American and Native American populations, this book considers the powerful influences of a client's developmental stage and cultural background. It maintains that integrating multicultural and lifespan considerations are crucial to counseling effectiveness. The authors advocate an understanding of individual differences, cultural, ethnic, racial, gender, sexual orientation, socioeconomic and individual in order for counselors to use existing strategies to their best advantage. Includes coverage on intervening with clients from counseling specific groups during various lifespan stages and professional issues, future directions of the multicultural counseling field. It provides readers with an awareness of gender issues, how counseling issues differ for various age groups as well as providing current information related to counseling people with disabilities. For professionals in the field of counseling.
