The Interpretive Process in Clinical Practice Philip F. D. Rubovits-Seitz, 2001 The first phase of interpretation consists of collecting and observing clinical data and the second entails understanding justifying progressively modifying and communicating latent meanings to the patient This interaction is upsetting because the therapist points out the patient's mistaken perceptions and beliefs To make the pivotal subject of interpretation as accessible useful and interesting as possible clinical illustrations are used throughout the book Following each vignette the author presents his own interpretation and commentary so that readers can compare constructions and interpretative reasoning He details the two stages of interpretation in each example so that readers can follow the process of moving from understanding to verbal intervention The book includes clinical illustrations from a continuous case report of an entire treatment The most relevant and revealing interpretations are selected and intervening clinical developments are summarized This helps the therapist follow the interpretations and their outcomes and to see how interpretive problems are solved Jungian Thought in the Modern World Elphis Christopher, Hester Solomon, 2000 C G Jung 1875 1961 was a man of the millennium His personal history parallels the history of the last century and is especially relevant to the current movement where themes not only from the last century but also the last millennium are being gathered in anticipation of the new era Jung s life and work touch on the past century s two major themes on the one hand the discovery and mapping of the unconscious an internal source of creativity and destruction for each individual and on the other hand those outbreaks of dreadful violence and expressions of awesome creativity that can erupt from within the unconscious of humankind as a whole Strategic Emotional Involvement Lawrence E. Hedges, 1996 In this book Hedges and his colleagues report clinical material to demonstrate how therapists can use their countertransferences in therapy They are all therapists who have extended themselves emotionally to the people they work with using depth psychological contact as part of their work Canadian Journal of Psychiatry ,1990
