the foundations of Morocco's approach to green energy and environmental sustainability politics and through the approach of autocracy research offers a new perspective on the country's environmental turn during the reign of King Mohammed VI. International accolades have rained on the Moroccan regime for its transition toward green energy and environmental sustainability politics. Green mega projects such as the Noor Ouarzazate solar plants and Morocco's vast wind farms contributed considerably to its reputation as a modern green kingdom. Within the nascent field of political ecology of the MENA region, the book examines the correlation between environmental sustainability politics and autocratic power. It proposes that the Moroccan regime strategically instrumentalizes this policy field to bolster regime resilience through legitimization strategies directed both at domestic and foreign audiences as well as cooptive practices aimed at generating support among national as well as foreign elites. Inevitably, the book returns to the Western Sahara conflict and the role environmental sustainability politics play in Morocco's attempt at its annexation. This book is perfect for undergraduates, postgraduates, and scholars alike. It speaks to a broad academic readership interested in modern Morocco and the Maghreb as well as political and environmental studies. Making and Unmaking Nations Scott Straus, 2015-03-15. Winner of the Grawmeyer Award for Ideas Improving World Order 2018. Winner of the Joseph Lepgold Prize. Winner of the Best Books in Conflict Studies. APSA Winner of the Best Book in Human Rights. ISA In Making and Unmaking Nations. Scott Straus seeks to explain why and how genocide takes place and perhaps more important, how it has been avoided in places where it may have seemed likely or even inevitable. To solve that puzzle, he examines postcolonial Africa, analyzing countries in which genocide occurred and where it could have but did not. Why have there not been other Rwandas? Straus finds that deep-rooted ideologies, how leaders make their nations, shape strategies of violence and are central to what leads to or away from genocide. Other critical factors include the dynamics of war, the role of restraint, and the interaction between national and local actors in the staging of campaigns of large-scale violence. Grounded in Straus's extensive fieldwork in contemporary Africa, the study of major twentieth-century cases of genocide and the literature on genocide and political violence, Making and Unmaking Nations centers on cogent analyses of three nongenocide cases: Côte d'Ivoire, Mali, and Senegal, and two in which genocide took place: Rwanda and Sudan. Straus's empirical analysis is based in part on an original database of presidential speeches from 1960 to 2005. The book also includes a broad gauge analysis of all major cases of large-scale violence in Africa since decolonization. Straus's insights into the causes of genocide will inform the study of political violence as well as giving policymakers and nongovernmental organizations valuable tools for the future.
