

DISCOVER FARMING CLASSROOM

Located at Washingpool Farm, the on-site classroom connects children with farming, food and the countryside and is available all year round for schools, local clubs, and youth organisations to visit. Kate Vining, the Discover Farming education co-ordinator, took over the running of the Discover Farming Classroom in June 2017.

"My aim is to deliver a stimulating environment for learning with plenty of hands-on interactive experiences that give children the opportunity to find out where their food comes from, how it grows, as well as gain an understanding of how farmers look after their animals and the environment. Since working on this project I've discovered that there is a real mix of knowledge amongst adults as well as children about what farming really is.

"We have a beef herd, sheep, pigs and chickens right next to the classroom, as well as fishing lakes where we explore different wildlife habitats. Linking closely to the science aspects of the National Curriculum, we cover the basics of life-cycles and reproduction. We also answer questions such as 'Why has the sheep got a blue bottom?' Do cows have to have had a calf to produce milk? Where does mince come from?"

"The hands-on aspect is very important. When a child holds an egg they have collected from the hen house, which is still warm, it becomes a memorable experience. Some children have never seen a bean, potato, beetroot or pumpkin growing. Having the classroom next to the fields that supply the farm shop they can see the vegetables being harvested, and see them in the shop – we take them on the whole journey from farm, field to plate. And through our partnership with the Bridport Local Food Group and their community cooking kit, we now host outdoor cooking sessions too." ### HELPING TO EDUCATE THE NEXT GENERATION

Simon and Vicky Holland,
Washingpool Farm & Shop

Washingpool Farm was bought by Simon's grandparents in 1973. They were dairy farmers. Simon's parents, Gillian and Alan, returned to the farm from London a few years later and the family started to grow fruit and vegetables initially to supply the local greengrocer in Bridport, which they eventually bought, adding a second shop (now both sold) and two market stalls. In 2000, the farm shop (originally a shed by the house) was relocated to a purpose-built shop which stocks a huge range of food and drink from across the county and the region, as well as from its own fields.

"Our farm is surprisingly small – only 80 acres – so it couldn't sustain all our families without a diversified business," says Vicky. "We farm fruit and vegetables, beef and sheep and have chickens for eggs – all for retail through the shop. We are so lucky with the amount and quality of local food we can source, and we have made friends with many of our suppliers who are farmer-retailers like us."

"Vicky and Simon strongly believe that everyone needs to have an understanding about the land and where their food comes from so they can make informed decisions about what they choose. "Our aim for our own children, who all help in the business, is for them to have the opportunity to learn about farming and have hands-on experience with the land and animals before they choose a career," says Simon. "I think they will all want to be involved in the land somehow: currently Grace, 17, wants to study animal behaviour, George, 15, is interested in the machines so maybe agricultural engineering (or gymnastics coaching), Alfred, 11, has ambitions to be an agricultural contractor, and Esther, 9, wants to be a gardener."

"It was becoming a school governor combined with my love for education that encouraged me to start inviting schools to the farm," adds Vicky. "We also got involved in the annual LEAF Open Farm Sunday. I could see the lack of in-depth food education in the primary school curriculum, so, when the Helplesh Agricultural Society approached us to explore linking the school visits with their Discover Farming programme, it seemed like a no-brainer to set up the Discover Farming Classroom here to give it all a much higher profile."
