11 Year Old Refugee:

Child, Adolescent and Family Refugee Mental Health Suzan J. Song, Peter Ventevogel, 2020-06-15 More than half of the 25.9 million refugees in the world are under the age of 18 and the mental health of these children and adolescents constitutes a growing global public health priority. Refugee children and their families are at increased risk to develop mental health problems but they often face major challenges in accessing adequate treatment and mental health professionals frequently feel ill equipped to assist this group. Refugees are faced with a plethora of issues including the ambiguous loss of loved ones, psychological trauma related to past experiences of violence and atrocities, the complexities of daily life as a refugee and the challenges to adapt to new systems of care and support. Refugees' life circumstances all too often undermine their agency as they face discrimination, stigma and social isolation or exclusion. Refugees are frequently disconnected from the usual family and community supports that they once had which creates additional mental distress. As parents struggle with these changes their children often find it even more difficult to adapt and connect with them. This all leads to increased prevalence of mental health conditions among refugees. Humanitarian policies recommend family centered interventions that are multi sectoral, multi disciplinary and focus on optimizing resource utilization. Over the last decade a considerable body of research has emerged around socio ecological models of mental health, family and community approaches and resilience and strengths based theories but these insights are insufficiently incorporated in the practice of mental health care for refugee children. Clinicians often struggle to grasp the common, unique stressors that families face and are not familiar with working with families as units for intervention. Using culturally and contextually informed assessment methods and family oriented management approaches not only help individual children or adolescents but also their families. This book aims to provide an overview of the latest theoretical insights from research on sociocultural aspects of mental health and connect these with clinical insights from practical mental health care provision. Using strengths based, resiliency oriented and family centered approaches can enrich clinical practice in refugee mental health but clinicians need to translate the emerging evidence into concrete steps and interventions. This requires additional skills for the assessment and management of mental health conditions in refugee children and families. The chapters in this book are written by a diverse group of authors using global, multi disciplinary approaches. The chapters provide examples from various contexts including refugees who are displaced to neighboring countries, refugees on the move and refugees and asylum seekers in resettlement settings. This book is therefore a unique resource for clinicians, researchers and policy makers working on mental health issues of refugee children and adolescents around the world.

Representations of Refugees, Migrants, and Displaced People as the 'Other' Rui Alexandre Novais, Carlos Arcila Calderón, 2024-10-14 This book explores how 21st century media based discourses on migrants, refugees and displaced people both reinforce and reconfigure existing negative stereotypes about these groups as other. It is particularly pertinent considering the increasingly polarized world context and the evolving communication ecosystem with new media as privileged platforms for exclusionary narratives toward the outgroups of migrants refugees and displaced people The book s contributions encompass various methodologies and disciplines within communication studies including qualitative analyses of media representations and quantitative research on public opinion Unlike much of the existing English language scholarship on these marginalized communities this book de centers North America and the UK to offer a global perspective focusing on regions such as continental and eastern Europe the Middle East and Persian Gulf India China Turkey Russia and Scandinavia

Europe on the move Peter Gatrell, Lyubov Zhvanko, 2017-06-26 Mass population displacement affected millions of Europe s civilians across the different theatres of war in 1914 18 At the end of the war a senior Red Cross official wrote there were refugees everywhere It was as if the entire world had to move or was waiting to move Europe on the move refugees in the era of the Great War 1912 23 is the first attempt to understand their experiences as a whole and to establish the political social and cultural significance and ramifications of the wartime refugee crisis Drawing on original research by leading specialists from more than a dozen countries it will become the definitive work on the subject and will appeal to anyone who wishes to understand how governments and public opinion responded to refugees a century ago

Building a Sustainable Society Through Child Participation Anna Sonander, Mimi Petersen, Per Wickenberg, 2026-01-28 This open access volume analyses the conditions needed for greater participation of children in social change and development focusing on Nordic countries With the idea that citizens of future societies are best placed to envisage their ideal future and that societies must receive children s trust and participation the volume looks at existing social legal and economic norms and discusses the various challenges at the institutional and societal levels in involving children The contributions consider the perspective of children and of other actors in the process The editors and authors begin with the premise that the lack of a functioning collaboration between children as actors and institutional actors who are supposed to work with for children can lead to serious consequences such as a lack of trust in society s representatives and in the legitimacy of legislation The volume draws empirical evidence and discussion points from cases of children s participation in family litigation school regulations and related areas in various Nordic countries It therefore shows the path to the rest of the world towards a more equitable and just future involving children s active participation in their and society s future
