Command Decisions Kent Roberts Greenfield,2015-12-08 Decision has always exerted a powerful attraction for the student of military affairs In the study of decisions in war whether on the field of battle or in the councils of state lie the great lessons of the conflicts that have shaped the course of history These lessons the professional soldier seeks in order to fit himself for the ultimate responsibilities of command the student of human affairs seeks them to explain past events The historians writing the history of the United States Army in World War II have had a unique opportunity to study the decisions of that conflict The response of the Army s schools and colleges as well as the public to this aspect of their work emphasized for them the interest of soldier and scholar alike in decision making in war at various levels of government and command As research progressed and material with which to illustrate this theme accumulated it appeared that a book on the subject based on the work already accomplished would be of interest to a variety of readers This volume is an outgrowth of that idea It is an analysis of 23 decisions reached by chiefs of state and their military subordinates during World War II Concerned with important political strategic tactical and logistical questions they include the invasions of North Africa and Normandy the use of the atomic bomb the capture of Rome the campaigns in the western Pacific and the internment of Japanese Americans

The GI Offensive in Europe Peter R. Mansoor,1999 The German Wehrmacht was one of the most capable fighting forces the world has ever known but in the end it was no match for the Allies Some historians contend that the Allies achieved victory through brute force and material superiority But as Peter Mansoor argues all of the material produced by US industry was useless without trained soldiers to operate it a coherent

Crane, 1993 As the might and capabilities of American airpower have grown during the last 60 years so has the controversy about its use in the intentional and indiscriminate wartime bombardment of civilians In Bombs Cities and Civilians Conrad Crane maintains that for the most part American airmen in World War II remained committed to precision bombing doctrine Instead of attacking densely populated urban areas simply to erode civilian morale Army Air Forces adhered to a policy that emphasised targeting key industrial and military sites He demonstrates that while the British Germans and Japanese routinely conducted indiscriminate aerial bombardment of enemy cities American airmen consistently stayed with daylight raids against carefully selected targets especially in Europe Daytime precision missions were usually far more dangerous than night area attacks but such Army Air Forces tactics increased bombing efficiency and also reduced the risk of civilian casualties General Walter Krueger Kevin C. Holzimner, 2007 A military biography of the general who led the U S Sixth Army in the Southwest Pacific in World War II including grueling jungle campaigns in New Britain and New Guinea and who was subsequently chosen by General MacArthur to lead the ground invasion of both the Philippines and Japan The Military Engineer; Journal of the Society of American Military Engineers, 1926 The First Summit Theodore A. Reardon, 2002 Determined to drive the Allies back to the English Channel elements of four combat hardened panzer divisions faced off against a single American infantry division near the town of Mortain The Americans held their ground enabling the Allied armies to secure the invasion and ultimately liberate France Reardon offers a new perspective on the German defeat in Normandy Hitler's Japanese Confidant Carl Boyd, 1993 In 1940 the US Army Signal Intelligence Service broke the Japanese diplomatic code In 1975 Oshima Hiroshi Japan's ambassador to Berlin during World War II died never knowing that the hundreds of messages he transmitted to Tokyo had been fully decoded by the Americans and whisked off to Washington providing a major source of information for the Allies on Nazi activities
