Victims Sarah Blackley,2011 The intention of this master s project is two fold first to propose a person centered group intervention to support and foster healing with drug facilitated sexual assault DFSA victims second to bring to light the dearth of research on DFSA even though this phenomenon has been on the rise since the mid 1990 s Due to the drugs used in DFSA victims are left with memories that are diminutive at best if the memory even exists Research shows that this inability to piece together what happened during the timeframe of intoxication leaves DFSA survivors to imagine the worst and many end up isolating and blaming themselves for what occurred Given this there still to date has been no research conducted to find appropriate therapeutic tools for victims of DFSA A person centered group specific to this population allows these women to come out of isolation and find curative alliances with fellow survivors to collectively move forward Abstract p 1
