Drug Studies In The Elderly Methodological Concerns:

Drug Studies in the Elderly N.R. Cutler, P.K. Narang, 2013-11-11 Clinical trials are the most definitive tool for evaluation of the applicability of clinical investigations. The main objective of clinical investigations is to assess the potential value of a therapeutic entity in the treatment or prophylaxis of a disease or a condition. It is also deemed necessary at this stage to obtain information regarding the undesirable side effects, associated risks, and their interrelationship with clinical assessments. Most of these clinical investigations conform in some form or fashion to the guidelines adopted by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) for a given class of compounds. Clinical investigations in the past have not included specific studies in special or subpopulations, e.g., the elderly. Because of an ever-increasing elderly population, newer policies for clinical investigations are now being debated with the recognition of enhanced drug sensitivity in this special population. This key research activity can lead not only to improved health care in the elderly but also to control of its costs. Current Bibliographies in Medicine, 1988

Geriatric Clinical Chemistry Willard R. Faulkner, 1994 The first single up-to-date source of reference values for the elderly. From a search of the literature, it is evident that reference values are intermixed with those of earlier ages. The book provides comprehensive data specifically on the elderly. The values were derived from widely diverse but well-defined populations of free-living individuals as well as those in institutions. Up to 175 analytes are covered. Values were determined from body fluids, chiefly blood, plasma, serum, cerebrospinal fluids, urine, as well as from organ function tests such as clearance. Other commonly used ratios of values are included. Information is expressed predominantly as percentiles: 5, 10, 50, 90, 95 for each age group, presented in graphic tabular form for ease of reading. 1993, 672 pages, 6 X 9, hardcover, ISBN 0 915274 65 5, AACCC Members 65, Order 623
