Roller Derby Michella M. Marino,2021-10-12 Since 1935 roller derby has thrilled fans and skaters with its constant action hard hits and edgy attitude However though its participants athleticism is undeniable roller derby has never been accepted as a real sport Michella M Marino herself a former skater tackles the history of a sport that has long been a cultural mainstay for one reason both utterly simple and infinitely complex roller derby has always been coed Richly illustrated and drawing on oral histories archival materials media coverage and personal experiences Roller Derby is the first comprehensive history of this cultural phenomenon one enjoyed by millions yet spurned by mainstream gatekeepers Amid the social constraints of the mid twentieth century roller derby s emphasis on gender equality attracted male and female athletes alike producing gender relations and gender politics unlike those of traditional sex segregated sports In an enlightening feminist critique Marino considers how the promotion of pregnancy and motherhood by roller derby management has simultaneously challenged and conformed to social norms Finally Marino assesses the sport s present and future after its resurgence in the 2000s

Casting a Giant Shadow Rachel S. Harris,Dan Chyutin,2021-07-06 Film came to the territory that eventually became Israel not long after the medium was born Casting a Giant Shadow is a collection of articles that embraces the notion of transnationalism to consider the limits of what is Israeli within Israeli cinema As the State of Israel developed so did its film industries Moving beyond the early films of the Yishuv which focused on the creation of national identity the industry and its transnational ties became more important as filmmakers and film stars migrated out and foreign films filmmakers and actors came to Israel to take advantage of high quality production values and talent This volume edited by Rachel Harris and Dan Chyutin uses the idea of transnationalism to challenge the concept of a singular definition of Israeli cinema Casting a Giant Shadow offers a new understanding of how cinema has operated artistically and structurally in terms of funding distribution and reception The result is a thorough investigation of the complex structure of the transnational and its impact on national specificity when considered on the global stage

Beneath the Surface Lynn M. Thomas,2020-01-10 For more than a century skin lighteners have been a ubiquitous feature of global popular culture embraced by consumers even as they were fiercely opposed by medical professionals consumer health advocates and antiracist thinkers and activists In Beneath the Surface Lynn M Thomas constructs a transnational history of skin lighteners in South Africa and beyond Analyzing a wide range of archival popular culture and oral history sources Thomas traces the changing meanings of skin color from precolonial times to the postcolonial present From indigenous skin brightening practices and the rapid spread of lighteners in South African consumer culture during the 1940s and 1950s to the growth of a billion dollar global lightener industry Thomas shows how the use of skin lighteners and experiences of skin color have been shaped by slavery colonialism and segregation as well as by consumer capitalism visual media notions of beauty and protest politics In teasing out lighteners layered history Thomas theorizes skin as a site for antiracist struggle and lighteners as a technology of visibility that both challenges and entrenches racial and gender hierarchies

Towards a neuroscience of social interaction Ulrich Pfeiffer, Bert Timmermans, Kai Vogeley, Chris Frith, Leonhard Schilbach, The burgeoning field of social neuroscience has begun to illuminate the complex biological bases of human social cognitive abilities However in spite of being based on the premise of investigating the neural bases of interacting minds the majority of studies have focused on studying brains in isolation using paradigms that investigate offline social cognition i e social cognition from a detached observer s point of view asking study participants to read out the mental states of others without being engaged in interaction with them Consequently the neural correlates of real time social interaction have remained elusive and may paradoxically represent the dark matter of social neuroscience More recently a growing number of researchers have begun to study online social cognition i e social cognition from a participant s point of view based on the assumption that there is something fundamentally different when we are actively engaged with others in real time social interaction as compared to when we merely observe them Whereas for offline social cognition interaction and feedback are merely a way of gathering data about the other person that feeds into processing algorithms inside the agent it has been proposed that in online social cognition the knowledge of the other at least in part resides in the interaction dynamics between the agents Furthermore being a participant in an ongoing interaction may entail a commitment toward being responsive created by important differences in the motivational foundations of online and offline social cognition In order to promote the development of the neuroscientific investigation of online social cognition this Frontiers Research Topic aims at bringing together contributions from researchers in social neuroscience and related fields whose work involves the study of at least two individuals and sometimes two brains rather than single individuals and brains responding to a social context Specifically this Research Topic will adopt an interdisciplinary perspective on what it is that separates online from offline social cognition and the putative differences in the recruitment of underlying processes and mechanisms Here an important focal point will be to address the various roles of social interaction in contributing to and at times constituting our awareness of other minds For this Research Topic we therefore solicit reviews original research articles opinion and method papers which address the investigation of social interaction and go beyond traditional concepts and ways of experimentation in doing so While focusing on work in the neurosciences this Research Topic also welcomes contributions in the form of behavioral studies psychophysiological investigations methodological innovations computational approaches developmental and patient studies By focusing on cutting edge research in social neuroscience and related fields this Frontiers Research Topic will create new insights concerning the neurobiology of social interaction and holds the promise of helping social neuroscience to really go social Wife or slave? Mrs. Albert S.
