Continuing Learning In The Professions:

Continuing Learning in the Professions Cyril O. Houle,1980-04-09 Continuing Professional Development In The Lifelong Learning Sector Scales, Peter,Pickering, Jo,Senior, Lynn,2011-01-01 The book sets the context for CPD and

Continuing Your Professional Development in Lifelong Learning Angela Steward,2010-06-01 New qualifications for those teaching and training in the FE sector became effective in September 2007 The reform of initial teacher training and the professionalisation of the workforce in the sector require a commitment to engage in continuing professional development The rationale for the book is contained in the argument that improvement of quality in teaching and learning in the sector is not achieved exclusively through short term external professional development and training activities Moreover it requires ongoing workplace learning which is long term in focus and practice orientated and work based In order to improve future practice it needs to be embedded in critical reflection and evaluation of workloads The purpose of the book is to introduce the notion that there is an opportunity for every teacher to develop their role through their workloads e.g workloads are a vehicle for professional development Ways to achieve this are identified by exploring the practice of experienced and successful teachers The author then goes on to offer guidelines for promoting constructive practice which is using the outcomes of reflection in the workplace to achieve role development Redesigning Continuing Education in the Health Professions Institute of Medicine,Board on Health Care Services,Committee on Planning a Continuing Health Care Professional Education Institute,2010-03-12 Today in the United States the professional health workforce is not consistently prepared to provide high quality health care and assure patient safety even as the nation spends more per capita on health care than any other country The absence of a comprehensive and well integrated system of continuing education CE in the health professions is an important contributing factor to knowledge and performance deficiencies at the individual and system levels To be most effective health professionals at every stage of their careers must continue learning about advances in research and treatment in their fields and related fields in order to obtain and maintain up to date knowledge and skills in caring for their patients Many health professionals regularly undertake a variety of efforts to stay up to date but on a larger scale the nation's approach to CE for health professionals fails to support the professions in their efforts to achieve and maintain proficiency Redesigning Continuing Education in the Health Professions illustrates a vision for a better system through a comprehensive approach of continuing professional development and posits a framework upon which to develop a new more effective system The book also offers principles to guide the creation of a national continuing education institute

Lifelong Learning W. Keith Davies,Norman Longworth,2014-04-23 This text sets out to explain the issues and attributes of lifelong learning as well as outlining the many initiatives which are being taken to help understand the implications and new roles for many of our institutions Authentic Professional Learning Ann Webster-Wright,2010-08-05 There is considerable and growing interest in professionals learning across their working lives The growth in this interest is likely premised upon the increasing percentage of those who are being employed under the designation as professionals or paraprofessional workers in advanced industrial economies Part of being designated in this way is a requirement to be able to work autonomously and in a relatively self regulated manner Of course many other kinds of employment also demand such behaviours However there is particular attention being given to the ongoing development of workers who are seen to make crucial decisions and take actions about health legal and financial matters Part of this attention derives from expectations within the community that those who are granted relative autonomy and are often paid handsomely should be current and informed in their decision making Then like all other workers professionals are required to maintain their competence in the face of changing requirements for work Consequently a volume that seeks to inform how best this ongoing learning can be understood supported and assisted is most timely and welcomed This volume seeks to elaborate professional learning through a consideration of the concept of authentic professional learning What is proposed here is that in contrast to programmatic approaches towards professional development the process of continuing professional learning is a personal complex and diverse process that does not lend itself to easy prescription or the realisation of others intentions

Lifelong Learning and the Academy: The Changing Nature of Continuing Education Jeffrey A. Cantor, 2006-12-15 This volume reviews the trends in professional continuing education including the major players professional associations commercial vendors proprietary schools not for profit organizations and more partnerships between the academy and employers and what makes continuing education programs successful The professional continuing education market in the United States continues to grow U S employers spent more than 51 billion annually on employee training in the 1990s This monograph reviews the recent literature and focuses on the reasons for the huge expansion of the professional continuing education market competitive world economies that are technology driven the modern citizen who has family and job demands the constantly evolving technology that affects both work and learning and the world of higher education that is poised to participate in the community and in turn generate additional revenues This is volume 32 number 2 of the ASHE Higher Education Report a bi monthly journal published by Jossey Bass See our entire list of ASHE Higher Education Report titles for a wide variety of critical issues facing Higher Education today

"Becoming" a Professional Lesley Scanlon, 2011-06-27 This book is founded on the idea that becoming is the most useful defining concept for a new professional class whose members understand that development in their working lives is an open ended lifelong process of refinement and learning In a world where being a professional is an increasingly indistinct notion and where better education and technology are challenging professional norms it is imperative that we no longer think in terms of an exclusive Anglo American knowledge rich class of workers Exploring the implications of this insight for professions including nursing teaching social work engineering and the clergy this volume aims to encourage informed debate on what it means to be a professional in this globalised 21st century The book argues that becoming a professional is a lifelong process in which individual professional identities are constructed through formal education workplace interactions and popular culture The book advocates the ongoingness of developing a professional self throughout one's professional life What emerges is a concept of becoming a professional different from the isolated rugged individualistic approach to traditional professional practice as represented in popular culture It is a book for the reflective professional

The Knowledge Economy and Lifelong Learning D.W. Livingstone, David Guile, 2012-09-07

This book presents some of the most trenchant critical analyses of the widespread claims for the recent emergence of a knowledge economy and the attendant need for greater lifelong learning The book contains two sections first general critiques of the limits of current notions of a knowledge economy and required adult learning in terms of historical comparisons socio political construction and current empirical evidence secondly specific challenges to presumed relations between work requirements and learning through case studies in diverse current workplaces that document richer learning processes than knowledge economy advocates intimate Many of the leading authors in the field are represented There are no other books to date that both critically assess the limits of the notion of the knowledge economy and examine closely the relation of workplace restructuring to lifelong learning beyond the confines of formal higher education and related educational policies This reader provides a distinctive overview for future studies of relations between work and learning in contemporary societies beyond caricatures of the knowledge economy The book should be of interest to students following undergraduate or postgraduate courses in most social sciences and education business and labour studies departments as well as to policy makers and the general public concerned about economic change and lifelong learning issues D W Livingstone is Canada Research Chair in Lifelong Learning and Work and Professor Emeritus at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education University of Toronto David Guile is Professor of Education and Work at the Institute of Education University of London

Promoting Lifelong Learning for Older Workers Tarja Tikkanen,2006 This publication contains a number of essays which explore issues relating to population ageing and the needs of older workers from a lifelong learning perspective Although the focus is on European experiences it also includes contributions from Australia Japan and the United States The central argument of this book is that ageing must be seen as a lifelong learning and development process in which one continuously takes on new life challenges and in the context of work lifelong learning is understood as a broad holistic concept which encompasses individual education and training as well as participative workplace learning actively supported by employers

Lifelong Learning By Design Khurram Jahangir,2020-09-17 Are you or do you want to be a health system or medical education leader or administrator Are you tired of more of the same Are you desperately looking for ways to break the status quo Are you interested in real and meaningful ways to evolve existing models of learning improvement and development in healthcare and medical education systems to one that is aligned with quality patient safety and personal professional fulfillment Change no matter how urgent and or clear the need is never easy And meaningful change is even more difficult to implement The first point of call is to recognize our own unconscious beliefs that guide our behaviour Our assumptions about our own and others experiences influence our behaviour implicit bias Awareness of these implicit unconscious biases and assumptions is essential if we are to reframe our experiences for behavioural change In essence the key ingredients to behavioural change and thereby system change are Motivation Understanding and Ability Knowing what to do doesn't necessarily mean we will actually do it Meaningful change is impossible unless all three ingredients are present Our environment strongly influences our behaviour both positively and negatively Developing an understanding of these environmental influences can not only help our motivation understanding and ability of the change improvement process but also give us the confidence that we can actually do it This book presents a revolutionary new vision concepts and models of transforming health professions lifelong learning and leadership development in line with the changing needs of our society It is NOT an attempt to provide specific solutions to problems in healthcare and medical education systems as developing solutions must require a contextual as well as personalized approach to issues at hand Instead I have provided concepts and strategies for healthcare and medical education leaders and administrators to develop localized and contextualized approaches for improvement The content of this book and the vision presented is derived from my own experience of not just conceptualizing but also successfully realizing the new model of lifelong learning and leadership development as the Founding Associate Dean Lifelong Learning Faculty of Medicine Dentistry University of Alberta Canada Khurram Continuing Professional Development and Lifelong Learning Greg J. Neimeyer, Jennifer M. Taylor, 2012 Through a variety of diverse perspectives the authors delve into critical issues related to lifelong learning and professional development and invite the reader to consider the roles and functions of continuing professional development the problems and prospects associated with mandating it and the continuing quest to translate effective learning into competent practice that is dedicated to the welfare of the consumer on the one hand and the generation of improved outcomes at the other Interested readers will range from current consumers to trenchant critics of the current health care system Anyone interested in improving health care services and developing best practices will find ample food for thought in the pages of this book that can be applied to better evaluating and facilitating ongoing professional competence and health care outcomes
