New discrete Adomian decomposition methods are presented by using some identified Clenshaw-Curtis quadrature rules. We investigate two mixed quadrature rules one of precision five and the other of precision seven. The first rule is formed by using the Fejér second rule of precision three and Simpson 1/3 rule of precision three, while the second rule is formed by using the Fejér second rule of precision five and the Boole rule of precision five. Our methods were applied to a nonlinear integral equation of the Hammerstein type and some examples are given to illustrate the validity of our methods.

1. Introduction

In this paper we study the problem of approximate solutions for the nonlinear integral equations of the Hammerstein type:

$$\lambda x(t) = y(t) + \int_a^b k(t, s) \omega(x(s)) ds, \quad (1)$$
$$\lambda \neq 0; \quad a \leq t \leq b.$$

Nonlinear integral equations arise naturally in many applications in describing numerous real world problems. For example, it occurs in solving several problems arising in economics, engineering, and physics. One of the most important frequently investigated nonlinear integral equations is the Hammerstein integral equation (cf. [1–5]).

On the other hand, there are significant interests in applying the Adomian decomposition method (ADM) for a wide class of nonlinear equations, for example, ordinary and partial differential equations, integral equations, and integrodifferential equations; see [6–9] and references therein.

In [10], Behiry et al. introduced a discrete version of the Adomian decomposition method and applied it to (1). This method is called a discrete Adomian decomposition method (DADM). DADM arises when the quadrature rules are used to approximate the definite integrals which cannot be computed analytically. The DADM gives the numerical solution at nodes used in the quadrature rules.

Dash and Das [11, 12] used mixed quadrature rules to approximate a definite integral, namely, mixed quadrature rules blending some Fejér and Newton-Cote type rule and a mixed quadrature rule blending Clenshaw-Curtis five-point rule and Gauss-Legendre three-point rule. Behiry and other [10] applied the Simpson rule with n subinterval and step size $h = (b - a)/n$. It is occasionally useful, both theoretically and practically, to have interpolatory formulas on sets of abscissas other than the equidistant set. A common choice is the set of zeros of an orthogonal polynomial.

Our main goal is to improve DADM, used by Behiry and other [10] to obtain approximate solutions of (1), by using mixed quadrature rules to approximate a definite integral. We use the advantage of the fact that the Fejér second rule of precision three and Simpson 1/3 rule of precision three to form a mixed quadrature rule of higher precision, that is, precision five. Also, we use the Fejér second rule of precision five and the Boole rule of precision five to form a mixed quadrature rule of precision seven. Our numerical examples show that our method gives approximate solutions to (1) more accurate than approximate solutions obtained in [10].
