Creating Strategic Vision Longrange Planning For National Security:

Creating Strategic Vision ,1987 Creating Strategic Vision: Long-Range Planning for National Security ,1987 America faces a 21st century challenged by military and political competition with the Soviet Union terrorism in the Third World and economic competition with Asia and Europe Our weaknesses are due as much as anything to our lack of strategic vision We lack effective systems for systematic long range planning and an ability to think about long range agendas for large institutions This book is a key building block to development of American strategic vision long range planning innovation and thinking about the future The effort to look at the Air Force experience to consider a surprise free future for dealing with the Soviet Union and to outline the fundamental questions of an introductory model for long range planning will be helpful to everyone who is concerned about America s defense establishment and about America s future Creating Strategic Vision Perry McCoy Smith,1987 Creating Strategic Vision Perry McCoy Smith,1987 Assembly ,1987 Our New National Security Strategy James J. Tritten,1992-09-30 This book is an analysis of President Bush s Regional Defense Strategy first unveiled in Aspen Colorado on August 2 1990 This strategy involves a mix of active reserve and reconstitutable forces and General Colin Powell s Base Force If implemented the new strategy and force structure would return significant U S ground and air forces to the continental United States where most would be demobilized In the event of a major crisis the United States would rely on active and reserve forces for a contingency response much as was done for Operation Desert Storm The new national security strategy is based upon the 25 percent budget cut negotiated with Congress a greatly depleted Russian threat and a new international security environment that assumes two years warning of a European centered global war with the former USSR There are four major critical factors upon which the new strategy depends 1 the continued decline of the Russians as a threat to world stability 2 the ability of the intelligence community to meet new challenges 3 the behavior of the allies and Congress and 4 the ability of industry to meet new demands The new strategy is not simply an adjustment to existing defense doctrine or strategy but rather a fundamental revision of the way the United States has approached defense since 1945 Students and scholars interested in politico military strategy and government policy will find this book of great interest Proceedings - United States Naval Institute United States Naval Institute,1990-12 Government Reports Annual Index ,1988 Naval War College Review ,1989 Airpower Journal ,1998 Government Reports Announcements & Index ,1991 Naval War College Review Naval War College (U.S.),1989 Strategic Planning for National Security Paul J. Bracken,Rand Corporation,1990 United States defense planning is at a crossroads and it is therefore useful to review not only discrete issues but even basic concepts of strategic planning This Note reviews concepts used in the business world to build insights about how to view current and prospective problems opportunities and choices The author draws upon the business literature for both ideas and metaphors He observes that U S national security planning could profit greatly from an approach that distinguishes among core environmental and hedging strategies and that considers security analogs to such business concepts as defining the business dealing with new competitors controlling the intensity of competition entry and exit barriers and the need to redeploy assets and restructure the organization He then relates these concepts to specific problems of national security interest Keywords National security Military strategy Military planning Defense planning Commerce EG Arms Control, Disarmament and International Security ,1987 The Presidency in Transition James P. Pfiffner,Ralph Gordon Hoxie,1989 The National Security Strategy: Documenting Strategic Vision Don M. Snider,2013-01-28 The Goldwater Nichols Department of Defense Reorganization Act of 1986 requires the President annually to submit an articulation of national grand strategy There have been six such reports published two during the second Reagan administration 1987 and 1988 three by the Bush administration 1990 1991 and 1993 and one by the Clinton administration in July 1994 Several conclusions about the formulation of American national security strategy can be drawn from the way in which these reports were developed Perhaps most importantly is the notion that today there is no consensus as to an appropriate grand strategy for the United States Second the executive branch traditionally does not conduct long range planning in a substantive or systematic manner Third what the executive branch does do is episodic planning for particular events as they rise to prominence The issue addressed in the following paper is whether it is wise in the future to attempt anything more than broad and episodic planning as a part of the formulation of strategy at this level The art of devising and articulating strategy is that of combining the various elements of power and relating them to the desired end But in the final analysis people of goodwill and intelligence will have to place national interests above political personal or even organizational concerns if the United States is to be served well by a coherent and appropriate strategy Strategy and the National Security Professional Harry R. Yarger,2008-07-30 This book focuses on strategic theory strategic thinking and strategy formulation It provides theory and framework for considering and formulating all state strategy It is an examination of theory exploring those aspects of strategy that appear to have a universal application With the proper environmental assessment and appraisal it argues key strategic factors can be identified and strategy appropriately formulated in rational expression of ends ways and means This book also demonstrates how to develop and clearly articulate the objectives concepts and resources in strategy as well as how to avoid common errors and pitfalls in strategy formulation It offers practical tests for determining the validity of a particular strategy and ways in which to articulate risk The Search for Strategy Gary L. Guertner,1993-05-30 Noted scholars and practitioners describe how America s military strategy is being developed in a post Cold War eolitical environment to meet future needs confronting the sole surviving world superpower In defining the domestic constraints and the intense political process that is tied into the formulation of military strategy they show how difficult it is to build a consensus for American military leadership in a multipolar world This evaluation of strategic concepts and their application to issues about conventional and nuclear deterrence technological requirements and collective security should be required
