Creative Conservation P.J. Olney,G. Mace,A. Feistner,2012-12-06 Past progress and future challenges R J Wheeler Royal Zoological Society of Scotland Edinburgh UK In the past two decades much has been achieved in the sphere of breeding endangered species and we should be pleased that our co operative efforts have already borne so much fruit However on balance and despite the best efforts of conservationists the position of wildlife in the wild places where they are best conserved has become worse often dramatically worse Before returning to the United Kingdom in 1972 I was in Uganda for 16 years most of which time was spent as Chief Warden of Murchison Falls National Park Our main problem was that an over population of large mammals was having a devastating impact on the habitat Devastation was being wrought on woodland areas by the arrival of large numbers of elephants into the sanctuary of the Park following changes in land use in the areas outside the Park These changes were in response to the requirements of an ever expanding human population

Creative Conservation - Interactive Management of Wild and Captive Populations P. J. S. Olney, The Neglected Ape Biruté M.F. Galdikas,R.D. Nadler,N. Rosen,Lori K. Sheeran,2013-11-11 The orangutan is the most highly endangered species of great ape Orangutans are threatened by deforestation poaching the illegal pet trade and the isolation and fragmentation of dwindling wild populations Their conservation is impeded by certain aspects of their ecology e.g a rain forest habitat and certain features of their life history e.g an eight to twelve year interbirth interval Added to the U S Endangered Species List in 1970 the orangutan is now clearly on the road to extinction The number of wild orangutans in Borneo and Sumatra is currently estimated to have decreased to between 12 300 and 20 571 individuals Only 2% of original orangutan habitat is protected and some of these areas are now being destroyed Clearly attention to ecology demography censusing rehabilitation and conservation is essential if the orangutan is to survive in the wild beyond the next century The protection of orangutans is a complex multifaceted problem involving such pressing issues as human poverty overpopulation and the economic development of Southeast Asia Although the orangutan has been placed in Appendix I of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora CITES more orangutans were sold illegally in Taiwan between 1990 and 1993 than are housed in all the world's zoos In the past scientific and public attention has centered on the African apes For this reason the sole Asian great ape the orangutan has been called the neglected ape Encyclopedia of the World's Zoos Catharine E. Extinction Studies Deborah Bird Rose,Thom van Dooren,Matthew Chrulew,2017-05-02 Extinction Studies focuses on the entangled ecological and social dimensions of extinction exploring the ways in which extinction catastrophically interrupts life giving processes of time death and generations The volume opens up important philosophical questions about our place in and obligations to a more than human world Drawing on fieldwork philosophy literature history and a range of other perspectives each of the chapters in this book tells a unique extinction story that explores what extinction is what it

Best Practice Guidelines for the Re-Introduction of Great Apes Benjamin Beck, 2007 From the website Although the IUCN has previously established working protocols for plant and animal re introduction the great apes present unique challenges and concerns owing to their singular cognitive development This prompted the Primate Specialist Group to reconsider the existing guidelines in terms of the specific needs of great apes The resulting synthesis representing the expert opinion of primatologists and re introduction practitioners is presented here as part of the series of best practices documents Specifically designed for rehabilitators and specialists in re introduction these guidelines start from the fundamental assumption that re introductions should not endanger wild populations of great apes or the ecosystems they inhabit Equally important is the health and welfare of the individual great apes being re introduced as well as the caretaker staff and the residents of the surrounding areas The re introduction guidelines also require that the factors which first threatened great apes in the proposed site of release have been addressed and resolved

Lion Tamarins Devra G. Kleiman, Anthony B. Rylands, 2002-09-17 Without the extraordinary efforts of the editors and authors of this book three of the four lion tamarin species golden golden headed black faced and black would most likely be extinct The contributors hard work set international standards and became the model for the preservation of other endangered species There is of course still much to be done and this comprehensive assessment of research findings and conservation efforts leads the way The first section of the book covers the history and framework of research and conservation for the four species stressing the importance of both group and individual efforts Part II examines the principal research fields that have played an important role in contributing to the management of the species in captivity and the wild the authors maintain that there is no substitute for long term data and good science when developing recovery and conservation programs Part III focuses on direct interventions to conserve wild populations and their habitats as guided by scientific and educational principles Kleiman and Rylands close the book by noting the remarkable accomplishments of lion tamarin conservation and look hopefully toward future directions and challenges

Annual Conference Proceedings American Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums,1993 Fieldiana ,1998 Birds on Fragmented Islands Bas van Balen,1999 This study describes analyses and provides suggestions for the amelioration of the impact of age long deforestation on the distribution of forest birds on the islands of Java and Bali Indonesia The first section deals with colonisation and extinction processes of forest birds in a number of remaining forest patches on Java In the regenerating forest of the Krakatau Islands colonisation and extinction of land birds appear to follow vegetation succession and therefore seem to affect the monotonic change as predicted by MacArthur Wilson s equilibrium theory of island biogeography
