

Common Tone Approach

Much like in Section #9, this exercise is based on a single melody note, allowing the harmony to create the motion. Continually experiment—this is a process that was taught to me by the great pianist Al Plank, and it completely transformed my ear training and control of harmony in ways that were foreign to me before approaching it this way.

For instance, here's an example of holding a G note on top of the turnaround chords...

Example 10-1

Example 10-1 illustrates a common tone approach exercise. The first system shows four chords: Dm11, G7, Cmaj7, and A7+9. The second system shows four chords: D7sus4, G9, C9, and A7+9. The third system shows seven chords: Dm9, G7#11, C6/9, A7+9, Dm11, D67(#11), and C6/9. The notation includes guitar chord diagrams and a staff with a held G note on the top line.

Any note can work, even ones outside the key. For instance, here's an E♯ on top, which transforms our home chord into a sharp 9, adding a bluesy, edgy quality that I really like.
