Building Partnerships Educating Health Professionals For The Communities They Serve:

Building Partnerships Ronald Richards, 1996 Since it was founded in 1930 the W K Kellogg Foundation has helped to develop health initiatives based on the premise that if given the tools individuals institutions and communities will make changes for the better As a reflection of that philosophy the Kellogg Foundation funded the Community Partnerships with Health Professions Education initiative to seek new approaches to educating primary care practitioners by linking universities and communities Building Partnerships is the first book to report on this five year initiative Written in accessible language the book is filled with real life stories and situations that suggest the scope and variety of the partnerships and the diversity of the people who are creating them By illuminating the Community Partnerships model Building Partnerships suggests ways community members academe and policy makers at multiple levels can lead educational reform in health professions education Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations for 2000 United States. Creating Our Identities in Service-Learning and Community Engagement Barbara E. Moely, Shelley H. Billig, 2009-09-09 This volume presents recent studies on program development student and community outcomes and future research in service learning and community engagement It features models of effective partnerships outcomes for K 12 and college students and explores service learning as a distinct research field proposing future research directions

Creating Community-Responsive Physicians Sarena D. Seifer, Kris Hermanns, Judy Lewis, 2023-07-03 Eighth in AAHE s Service Learning in the Disciplines Series this volume shows how service learning is not only a strategy for preparing community responsive and competent health physicians but also for fostering citizenship and changing the relationship between communities and medical schools This very useful book provides readers with a valuable source of information and inspiration to develop and expand service learning across the continuum of medical education

Educating Nurses for Leadership Harriet R. Feldman, PhD, RN, FAAN, 2005-04-18 Winner of an AJN Book of the Year Award Nurses are presented with the challenge of leading a variety of groups in our healthcare environment ranging from patients and families to communities and organizations While there appears to be little time for leadership development leadership skills are in great demand This first book of its kind fills the leadership development void not perviously addressed in nursing education

Nursing Practice, Policy and Change Marjorie Gott, 2018-10-08 Many drugs requiring intravenous infusion are used in situations where precise and rapid administration are essential A simple miscalculation can easily lead to a massive error in dose administration with disastrous medical consequences This is the living nightmare of every sleep deprived junior doctor Intravenous Infusions A Guide To Their Calculation contains the vital information which doctors nurses and pharmacists need on those occasions demanding quick decisions It could save lives

Pursuing Opportunities Through Partnerships Bruce A. Behringer, 2004 In 1998 the W W

Kellogg Foundation provided funding for four universities to collaborate with surrounding communities on mutually beneficial projects through the Expanding Community Partnerships Program. In a series of innovative learning collaborations, East Tennessee University, the University of Texas at El Paso, West Virginia University, and Northeastern University established strong, sustainable partnerships with organizations in their local communities. Although each university approached its partnering differently, they all shared the goal of benefiting the underserved communities where they are located and transforming their institutions by enhancing students' educational experiences and strengthening faculty, student, administration, and staff relationships with local residents. This book shares those relationship-building experiences of the four universities and communities. Highly recommended for all public and higher education administrators, for students and teachers of education, business, and sociology, and for those interested in innovative business and social service models.

Advancing the Healthy People 2010 Objectives Through Community-based Education Kara M. Connors, 2003

Universities and Communities Jacquelyn McCroskey, Susan D. Einbinder, 1998-08-20. Leaders in interprofessional education efforts examine the potential and the challenges of developing effective partnerships between universities and communities, focusing on improving the lives of families and children. Until recently, higher education has had little to do with the multiple service reform efforts underway across the country in response to the widely perceived crisis in services for families and children. By maintaining professional preparation programs that emphasize separation between disciplines and increasing specialization, universities have typically reinforced service fragmentation. This book suggests steps that universities can take toward solutions by changing current approaches to professional education in multiple disciplines, supplementing professional education with interprofessional training, and developing effective partnerships with communities to improve outcomes for families and children. Directed toward those academics in professional preparation programs and allied professionals, this book describes changes underway in professional practice with families and children, including service integration, multidisciplinary service provision, and other collaborative efforts, and suggests steps that universities can take to partner with community members and community-based professionals. A broad range of disciplines and perspectives are represented, including social work, education, public administration, geography, urban planning, nursing, psychology, and medicine, and other allied fields. The chapters are organized in four parts: the needs and challenges for interprofessional education, changing theories and infrastructures of community practice, linking the university to the community, and challenges for universities for the next century.

Catalysts in Interdisciplinary Education Denise E. Holmes, Marian Osterweis, 1999 Collaborative Practice Robbie W. Tourse, Jean Mooney, 1999-07-30. Tourse, Mooney, and their contributors argue that schools alone can no longer meet the complex needs of children and adolescents. The overwhelming needs of school children require that schools institute massive coordinated and collaborative efforts among various disciplines and agencies The authors propose a restructuring of schools and social service systems to respond to the needs for interprofessional collaboration While they focus primarily on the collaboration of social work and education they look beyond that to relationships with other allied disciplines in public schools and explore collaborative linkages with nursing law counseling pastoral counseling and other agents of society The collection culminates with an examination of the realities of interprofessional collaboration in urban and suburban communities This is an important guide for researchers policy makers and professional educators involved with school reform and systems change in the United States
