

Childcare Apprenticeships

What do early years educators do?

Before children begin school, the early years are a critical period for their educational development. This phase is essential for children to build cognitive, social, and emotional skills that will benefit them throughout their lives.

Early years educators play a vital role in children's development before they enter school. They design educational activities, supervise children under five, and ensure their safety and happiness.

Various establishments, such as private nurseries, maintained nursery schools, reception classes, playgroups, and hospitals, require early years professionals.

This is a fulfilling profession where apprentices witness children's learning and development firsthand. Some common responsibilities include:

- Organising educational activities
- Supporting early language development
- Encouraging various learning experiences
- Establishing strong relationships with parents and guardians

Early years educators have a crucial and fulfilling responsibility in guiding children towards a strong foundation for life and readiness for school.

Various pathways lead to a career in early years, such as apprenticeships. Opting to become an apprentice allows you to earn a salary while acquiring the necessary qualifications for a profession in early years.

What early years apprenticeships are available?

Currently, there are three early years apprenticeships open for application, with two being ideal for individuals without prior experience. The duration of these apprenticeships ranges from 12 to 24 months.

You have the flexibility to begin at any level, meaning there is no requirement to complete Level 2 before progressing to Level 3.
