Trade and money Elena Frangakis-Syrett, 2007 Index Islamicus, 2007 Institutional Change and Economic Behaviour International Economic Association. World Congress, 2008-02-21 This book explores institutional change and economic behaviour through examining the transition process in the eight former socialist countries that became members of the EU in 2004 looking at the phenomenal growth that has been taking place in China in the last three decades offering a historical perspective on the causes of economic underdevelopment in the Middle East and discussing just how much of the neo classical paradigm is refuted by the evidence produced by experimental economics in recent years In addition a conceptual framework is proposed for analyzing mechanisms of institutional change and an evolutionary model and agent based model are developed Political Competition, Innovation, and Growth in the History of Asian Civilizations Peter Bernholz, Roland Vaubel, 2004 Do political decentralisation and inter state competition favour innovation and growth There has long been a lively debate surrounding this question going back to David Hume and Immanuel Kant This book is a new attempt to test its veracity The existing literature tends to assume that the beneficial effects of inter state competition have been confined to European history By contrast China India and the Islamic Middle East are regarded as inherently imperial and overcentralised However these civilisations have not always been unified politically In their history there have been long spells of decentralised rule or inter state competition The same is true for Japan If the Hume Kant hypothesis is correct it should also apply to those periods This volume analyses the qualitative and quantitative evidence The authors comprise eminent historians sociologists economists and socio psychologists and the resulting book is a truly interdisciplinary enterprise Addressing a wide readership this book will hold strong appeal for scholars and researchers of general Asian and economic history political economy political science and sociology
