Sun Pin: Military Methods Ralph D. Sawyer, 1995-04-27 The enormous recent popularity in America of Sun tzu's Art of War has heightened awareness of the great Chinese tradition of writing on theory and practice of war This tradition has always emphasized that warfare is as much the deployment of spiritual and mental forces as of combat forces as much a matter of patience and attention as of brute strength As a result new generations of readers have found many of its precepts applicable to forms of struggle far from any actual battlefield While it has brought this tradition greater exposure the reception of Art of War threatens to overshadow and obscure the other significant texts that followed in its wake Foremost among these is Military Methods of the Art of War written in the fourth century B C by the purported great grandson of Sun tzu the general Sun Pin Military Methods is both an extension of the strategic philosophy of the earlier work and a development of a new strategic style one that enabled Sun Pin to guide the armies of the province of Ch i to decisive victories over their enemies in the battles of Kuei ling and Ma ling Long believed lost the text of Military Methods was recovered from a Han dynasty tomb in 1972 The salvaged original fragmentary in nature is divided into thirty three sections covering such topics as unfavorable terrains the origins of war guest and host armies male and female cities and the ten strategic uses of cavalry To bridge the gaps in the original translator Ralph D Sawyer the leading authority on Chinese military history and its major texts has provided extensive commentary and notes as well as a detailed historical introduction

Art of War is an ancient Chinese military treatise dating from the 5th century BC. Attributed to the ancient Chinese military strategist Sun Tzu, Master Sun also spelled Sunzi, the text is composed of 13 chapters, each of which is devoted to one aspect of warfare. It is commonly thought of as a definitive work on military strategy and tactics. It was placed at the head of China's Seven Military Classics upon the collection's creation in 1080 by Emperor Shenzong of Song and has long been the most influential strategy text in East Asia. It has had an influence on Eastern and Western military thinking, business tactics, legal strategy, and beyond. The book was first translated into French in 1772 by the Jesuit Jean Joseph Marie Amiot, and a partial translation into English was attempted by British officer Everard Ferguson Calthrop in 1905. The first annotated English translation was completed and published by Lionel Giles in 1910. This present edition comes from Lionel Giles's translation.

Composed by two prominent statesmen/generals of classical China, this book develops the strategies of Sun Tzu's classic The Art of War into a complete handbook of organization and leadership. The great leaders of ancient China, who were trained in Sun Tzu's principles, understood how war is waged successfully, both materially and mentally, and how victory and defeat follow clear social, psychological, and environmental laws. Drawing on episodes from the panorama of Chinese history, Mastering the Art of War presents practical summaries of these essential laws, along with tales of conflict and strategy that show in concrete terms the proper use of Sun Tzu's principles. The book also examines the social and psychological aspects of organization and crisis management. The translator's introduction surveys the Chinese philosophies of war and conflict and explores in depth the parallels between The Art of War and the oldest handbook of strategic living, the I Ching.
