@ thewitchoftheforest

Tasseography is a divination method that interprets patterns in tea leaves, coffee grounds, or wine sediments

It's better to use loose leaf tea as the broader leaves will form better patterns & stick to the cup

Use a tea cup & saucer rather than a mug. The cup has a wider rim and slanted sides which makes it easier for the leaves to stick to the cup & make patterns

Put one teaspoon of tea in a cup with hot water. Don't add anything else. When you've almost finished, swirl your cup around three times

Place the saucer on top of the cup & flip them upside down. Concentrate on your questions or intentions

When you feel ready, flip the cup the right way & interpret how & where they have settled
