

DIRECT VS CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE

DIRECT

Direct evidence is a type of evidence that, if true, directly proves a fact without requiring any inference or presumption. This could include eyewitness testimony, video or audio recordings, or a written confession, which gives straightforward proof or disproof of a fact. It is seen as more reliable than circumstantial evidence.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL

Circumstantial evidence is indirect evidence that implies something occurred but does not directly prove it. It requires inference and reasoning to connect the evidence to a specific conclusion or event. It is therefore seen as less reliable as standalone evidence, but can be used to contribute to building a case.
