City Beneath The Sea:

The Stuff of Science Fiction Gary Westfahl, 2002-10-07 While students and general readers typically cannot relate to esoteric definitions of science fiction they readily understand the genre as a literature that characteristically deals with subjects such as new inventions space robot and aliens This book looks at science fiction in precisely this manner with twenty one chapters that each deal with a subject that is repeatedly addressed in science fiction of recent centuries Based on a packet of original essays that the author assembled for his classes the book could serve as a supplemental textbook in science fiction classes but also contains material of interest to science fiction scholars and others devoted to the genre In some cases chapters offer thorough surveys of numerous works involving certain subjects such as imagined vehicles journeys beneath the Earth and undersea adventures discovering intriguing patterns in the ways that various writers developed their ideas When comprehensive coverage of ubiquitous topics such as robots aliens and the planet Mars is impossible chapters focus on major themes referencing selected texts A conclusion discusses other science fiction subjects that were omitted for various reasons and a bibliography lists additional resources for the study of science fiction in general and the topics of each chapter

Cultures in Orbit Lisa Parks, 2005 In 1957 Sputnik the world's first man made satellite dazzled people as it zipped around the planet By the beginning of the twenty first century more than eight thousand satellites orbited the Earth and satellite practices such as live transmission direct broadcasting remote sensing and astronomical observation had altered how we imagined ourselves in relation to others and our planet within the cosmos In Cultures in Orbit Lisa Parks analyzes these satellite practices and shows how they have affected meanings of the global and the televisual Parks suggests that the convergence of broadcast satellite and computer technologies necessitates an expanded definition of television one that encompasses practices of military monitoring and scientific observation as well as commercial entertainment and public broadcasting Roaming across the disciplines of media studies geography and science and technology studies Parks examines uses of satellites by broadcasters military officials archaeologists and astronomers She looks at Our World a live intercontinental television program that reached five hundred million viewers in 1967 and Imparja tv an Aboriginal satellite tv network in Australia Turning to satellites remote sensing capabilities she explores the U S military's production of satellite images of the war in Bosnia as well as archaeologists use of satellites in the excavation of Cleopatra's palace in Alexandria Egypt Parks's reflections on how Western fantasies of control are implicated in the Hubble telescope's views of outer space point to a broader concern that while satellite uses promise a global village they also cut and divide the planet in ways that extend the hegemony of the post industrial West In focusing on such contradictions Parks highlights how satellites cross paths with cultural politics and social struggles
