City matters Martin Boddy, Michael Parkinson, 2004-05-19 This book provides in a single volume a review of the findings of the largest ever programme of cities research in the UK the Economic and Social Research Council's Cities Competitiveness and Cohesion programme Leading experts present the findings of this wide ranging programme organised around themes of competitiveness social cohesion and the role of policy and governance The book develops our understanding of key processes issues and concepts critical to cities and urban change and examines a large body of evidence on a wide range of policy issues at the heart of current debates about the performance of cities and the prospects for urban renaissance City matters is essential reading for all policy makers practitioners analysts and academics with an interest or involvement in urban issues

Enterprise, Deprivation and Social Exclusion Alan Southern, 2012-04-27 There is little doubt that in recent years enterprise has been considered an essential approach in the alleviation of deprivation existing in the developed world The assumption is that area based initiatives provide a means by which enterprise can include all members of society in mainstream social and economic activities The rationale behind Enterprise Deprivation and Social Exclusion is to critically challenge the notion that enterprise can address the complexity behind deprivation and social exclusion by demonstrating UK and North American examples We see how enterprise has come to be regarded as a means by which poverty can be reduced and new opportunities can be opened up to support individuals However the authors here seek to give a greater appreciation to the structural roots of deprivation and pose questions about whether or not enterprise might actually exacerbate structures of social and economic exclusion What if enterprise actually maintains differences between types of community and keeps individuals entrenched in certain ways of thinking The contributions in this edited collection will offer a distinct opportunity in respect of both theoretical and empirical advancement The authors hail from both sides of the Atlantic and form an inter disciplinary group to provide complementary perspectives in this field

The Global Urban Competitiveness Report - 2010 Pengfei Ni, Peter Karl Kresl, 2010-01-01 The Global Urban Competitiveness Report 2010 is an empirical study of the competitiveness of 500 cities around the world This one of a kind annual resource draws on a wealth of data sources all of which are described and assessed Using a sophisticated methodology and a team of 100 researchers from the Chinese Academy of Social Science the book not only ranks these cities but also presents a wealth of information with regard to the strengths and weaknesses of each city in relation to each other The book includes a full discussion of the factors that create urban competitiveness what sorts or categories of cities are most competitive and comments on the policies and initiatives that are adopted by the most competitive cities Scholars and researchers in the areas of urban economics planning geography and regional economics will find the information invaluable as will local authorities decision makers and economic planners in cities throughout the world

Urban Regeneration in the UK Andrew Tallon, 2009-08-21 Exploring the streets of London Manchester Belfast Edinburgh or Cardiff one cannot help but notice the striking transformations taking place in the urban landscapes This prominent regeneration of urban areas in the UK and around the world has become an increasingly important issue amongst governments and populations The growing concern has been a result of the impacts of the decline of cities since the collapse of manufacturing industries and the heightening of global competition A range of innovative approaches to tackle urban problems have been taken over many decades to attempt to regenerate the fortunes of towns and cities across the UK This text provides an accessible yet critical synthesis of urban regeneration in the UK incorporating key policies approaches issues and debates The central objective of the book is to place the historical and contemporary regeneration agenda into context Section one sets up the conceptual and policy framework for urban regeneration in the UK Section Two traces policies that have been adopted by central government to influence the social economic and physical development of cities including early municipal interventions in the late nineteenth century community focused urban policies of the late 1960s entrepreneurial property led regeneration of the 1980s and competition for urban funds in the 1990s The penultimate section illustrates the key thematic policies and strategies that have been pursued by cities themselves focusing particularly on improving economic competitiveness and tackling social disadvantage These approaches are contextualized by discussions covering for example urban competitiveness policies and the focus on sustainable urban regeneration The final section summarizes key issues and debates facing urban regeneration and speculates upon future directions Urban Regeneration in the UK blends the approaches taken by central government programmes and cities themselves in the regeneration process The latest ideas and examples from across disciplines and across the UK s urban areas are illustrated This book provides a comprehensive and up to date synthesis that will fill a significant gap in the current literature on regeneration and will be a tool for students as well as a seminal read for practitioners and researchers Environment and Planning ,2008

Environment & Planning ,2012 Forthcoming Books Rose Army,2003-12 Managing Regional Tourism Rhodri Thomas,2009 In addition to explaining the historical development of tourism in Yorkshire this book examines key policy issues These encompass marketing economic development and regeneration governance business development and the labour market sustainability and various socio cultural considerations Yorkshire is ideal material for a case study of regional tourism It encompasses declining seaside resorts national parks industrial heritage iconic landmarks aspirational cities seeking to reinvent themselves via tourism world heritage sites and national museums These characteristics are far from unique In providing a detailed analysis of Yorkshire the insights contained in this book will resonate with those seeking to understand regional tourism management more generally Migration and Socioeconomic Change Anthony Gerard Champion,2007 Migration and socioeconomic change brings new evidence to debates on urban regeneration in Britain are we seeing urban renaissance or is there city flight This study examines 27 of the largest cities and city regions to find out whether they attract the talented people that they need to prosper By examining the migration data of the 2001 Census of population Britain s most and least successful cities are identified There is also a look at more local population movements within the city regions of London Birmingham and Bristol Four key findings stand out cities losing population included all the large conurbations plus most small cities in the North and West London stood out in attracting many higher managerial and professional people and especially recent graduates cities making strong gains from longer distance movement mostly had growing local job numbers plus some key quality of life characteristics and some cities attracting few longer distance migrants also lose many migrants more locally threatening their tax base and housing markets The study gives much new information for urban and regional students and researchers while the findings on individual cities can help target urban regeneration policies Entrepreneurship and Innovations in Functional Regions Charlie Karlsson,Börje Johansson,Roger Stough,2009 The contributions forming the different chapters in this book were first presented and discussed at the Eight Uddevalla Symposium 2005 held at and hosted by the University West Uddevalla Sweden Pref

After the Gold Rush Anthony Vigor, Melissa Mean, Charlie Tims, 2004 The Olympic Games always generates a great deal of enthusiasm and expectation Hosting the greatest show on earth is seen by some as a once in a lifetime opportunity to provide new infrastructure and deliver benefits to local residents and communities Those organising the London 2012 bid are no different claiming a Games would deliver a legacy of new sporting facilities thousands of new jobs new businesses a step change in the nation's physical activity and ultimately a transformation of the East End of London But an analysis of past Games reveals that there is no automatic Olympic dividend with the benefits often failing to flow to the people and places most in need What is clear is that those cities that have secured a more sustainable legacy have embedded the Olympics within a broader urban strategy The challenge for London is to integrate the preparation for and hosting of the Games into a broader social policy agenda from the outset The contributors to this report analyse the challenges facing the organisers and offer a practical vision for a London Games which brings a sustainable legacy for employment sport culture the environment and local communities
