Property in East Central Europe Hannes Siegrist, Dietmar Müller, 2014-11-01 Property is a complex phenomenon comprising cultural social and legal rules During the twentieth century property rights in land suffered massive interference in Central and Eastern Europe The promise of universal and formally equal rights of land ownership ensuring predictability of social processes and individual autonomy was largely not fulfilled The national appropriation of property in the interwar period and the communist era represent an onerous legacy for the postcommunist re construction of a liberal individualist property regime However as the scholars in this collection show after the demise of communism in Eastern Europe property is again a major factor in shaping individual identity and in providing the political order and culture with a foundational institution This volume analyzes both historical and contemporary forms of land ownership in Poland Romania and Yugoslavia in a multidisciplinary framework including economic history legal and political studies and social anthropology

Transformation in Hungarian Law (1989-2006) Vanda Lamm, 2007 This collection of studies attempts to summarize the major changes in the Hungarian legal system since 1990 The authors realize that a comprehensive overview of the entire legal system of period would go well beyond the scope of this book and in fact could be too detailed to interest prospective readers unfamiliar with the topic Based on this understanding the book focused on each major branch of law separately constitutional law administrative law criminal law civil law etc while aiming to describe all major aspects of these changes
