Defending the Border Mathijs Pelkmans,2011-05-16 This book one of the first in English about everyday life in the Republic of Georgia describes how people construct identity in a rapidly changing border region Based on extensive ethnographic research it illuminates the myriad ways residents of the Caucasus have rethought who they are since the collapse of the Soviet Union Through an exploration of three towns in the southwest corner of Georgia all of which are situated close to the Turkish frontier Mathijs Pelkmans shows how social and cultural boundaries took on greater importance in the years of transition when such divisions were expected to vanish By tracing the fears longings and disillusionment that border dwellers projected on the Iron Curtain Pelkmans demonstrates how elements of culture formed along and in response to territorial divisions and how these elements became crucial in attempts to rethink the border after its physical rigidities dissolved in the 1990s The new boundary drawing activities had the effect of grounding and reinforcing Soviet constructions of identity even though they were part of the process of overcoming and dismissing the past Ultimately Pelkmans finds that the opening of the border paradoxically inspired a newfound appreciation for the previously despised Iron Curtain as something that had provided protection and was still worth defending Pulp ,1999 Eagle:The Making Of An
