Mercer,2016-06-28 This book explores key areas of educational and social psychology and considers their relevance to language learning and teaching using activities and questions for reflection The topics discussed in the book include learners and teachers beliefs about how a language should be learned and taught learning and working in groups relationships with others the role of the self in teaching and learning motivation to start and persist with tasks the role of emotions in learning The authors provide useful insights for the understanding of language learning and discuss the important implications for language teaching pedagogy Extra resources are available on the website www.oup.com/elt/teacher/exploringpsychology Marion Williams was formerly Reader in Applied Linguistics at the University of Exeter and is a past president of IATEFL Sarah Mercer is Professor of Foreign Language Teaching at the University of Graz Austria Stephen Ryan is Professor in the School of Economics at Senshu University Tokyo The Effect of Community Context on Intergenerational Spanish Maintenance and English Proficiency Among Latina and Latino Children Nancy Alison Garrett,1997 In this dissertation I investigate how community context affects Spanish language use and English proficiency among Latina and Latino children in the United States focusing on the children of immigrants I view children s language attributes through a sociological perspective that recognizes that children learn and use languages within specific social and cultural contexts and that these contexts have an important effect on language acquisition and use This theoretical perspective leads to the hypothesis that children s language skills and language use will be affected by the communities they live in I predict that living in a metropolitan area with a greater propinquity and availability of Spanish speakers will increase a child s likelihood of speaking Spanish because this will increase opportunities for using and hearing Spanish and promote Spanish within a larger United States context that often devalues languages other than English At the same time I hypothesize that community context will have little effect on children s English skills because of the ubiquitous presence of English in the daily life of any U S child I test these hypotheses using a national sample of children who live in metropolitan areas drawn from the 1990 Census I find that levels of Spanish maintenance are extremely high among children of Latina o immigrants and that a large majority of children who are born in the U S speak English fluently Multivariate analysis demonstrates that several dimensions of a metropolitan area s language context in particular the saturation and segregation of Spanish speakers have a strong effect on second generation children s likelihood of speaking Spanish that persists even after controlling for household and individual level variables Contrary to my original hypothesis I also find that the language characteristics of the metropolitan area have a significant effect on children s English proficiency This effect however is smaller than the effect of metropolitan context on Spanish use This analysis produces a better understanding of the specific elements of household and community context that affect language use The results imply that children of immigrants are following multiple paths to language adaptation and that metropolitan context is an important influence on this process of adaptation Cognitive and Educational Psychology for TESOL Andrzej Cirocki,Bimali Indrarathne,Sharon McCulloch,2024-08-19 This volume has been written specifically with TESOL teacher educators practitioners and classrooms in mind It is divided into three sections cognitive aspects of language learning individual differences and language learning difficulties and challenging behaviours Structured in this way it enables TESOL teacher educators and practitioners to better understand how language learners process and retain new information improving their overall ability to learn and remember In addition to supporting TESOL teacher educators and practitioners in promoting effective language learning this volume explains individual differences among language learners and the importance of developing learners emotional social and behavioural skills while addressing learning difficulties disorders disabilities and challenging behaviours whenever required The individual chapters are written in an accessible style to enable readers to explore various psychological concepts in their pedagogical practice by engaging in reflective teaching through action research This volume is a vital resource for pre and in service language teachers and will encourage language teacher educators to reassess their existing practices Chapter 2 is available open access under a Creative Commons Attribution 4 0 International License via link springer.com
