Numbers, 2003 A new and comprehensive examination of the history of the modern physical and mathematical sciences Journal of Astronomical History and Heritage ,2009 The Invention That Changed the World Robert Buder, 1998-03-23 From Simon Schuster The Invention That Changed the World explores how a small group of radar pioneers won the second World War and launched a technical revolution The technology that was created to win World War II radar has revolutionized the modern world This is the fascinating story of the inventors and their inventions SSSS - Newsletter of the Society for Social Studies of Science 4S: Society for Social Studies of Science, 1981 Discovering Robert Scott Root-Bernstein, 1989 Root Bernstein natural science and physiology Michigan State attempts to understand how scientists invent through an imaginary reconstruction of the arguments reflections and games of six fictional characters The index is of names only The Root Bernstein natural science and physiology Michigan State attempts to understand how scientists in American Sociological Review ,1936 Includes sections Book reviews and Periodical literature The Big Bang-steady State Controversy Craig Sean McConnell, 2000 Information Sur Les Sciences Sociales ,1984 Digging for Dollars Paul Fagette, 1996 This study investigates the institutional evolution of American archaeology during the 1930s Its primary focus is the process by which archaeologists created a modern professional science through government especially at the federal level Knowledge and Society David J. Hess, Linda L. Layne, 1989-11 This volume presents discussions of material culture and society It offers a perspective that recognizes technology as material culture that is as manufactured things spawned by a community and as characteristic of it as its language behaviour and oral and written knowledge The chapter Progress in Separate Spheres addresses the relationship between the theme of progress and material culture through advertising Another chapter analyzes the computer and points out that the physical attributes of the machine make it an enigma which cannot be revealed by disassembling its working parts but must be discovered through the mental comprehension of its processes Two papers discuss the introduction of technologies to communities from different perspectives The volume ends with a paper on human automata an example of an object in which technology and humanity confront each other Locating Gene-environment Interaction Sara Shostak, 2003

Science in Context Barry Barnes, David O. Edge, 1982 This collection of eighteen readings provides a basic text for undergraduates taking sociology of science courses A general survey of articles published between 1961 and 1981 the book is also a useful overview for students taking courses in social and political studies of science science technology and society and social issues components of courses in the environmental sciences geography philosophy and history of science The editors have organized the book around the relationship between the subculture of science and the wider culture which surrounds it Looked at from this perspective science is primarily a source of knowledge and competence Thus to stress its interaction with its context not only highlights these aspects of science which most people find of overriding pragmatic interest but also raises important basic issues concerning credibility the distribution of authority in society and the nature of the interaction between different forms of culture Essays are grouped in five sections The Organization of Academic Science Communication and Control The Culture of Science The Interaction of Science and Technology The Interaction of Science and Society Science as Expertise The editors have added a general introduction part introductions bibliographical notes and a lengthy bibliography Barry Barnes is Lecturer at the Science Studies Unit University of Edinburgh and editor of an earlier version of this book The Sociology of Science published in the Penguin Sociology Readings series and now out of print David Edge is Director of The Science Studies Unit at the University of Edinburgh and a joint editor of the journal Social Studies of Science Society, Technology, and Risk Assessment Jobst Conrad,1980 SSSS Society for Social Studies of Science,1982
