Studies of History and Tradition in the Four Gospels R. T. France, David Wenham, 1980 Few questions have received more attention from Christian scholars and theologians during the past two hundred years than the question of history and tradition in the four gospels But real advances in understanding that have been made there is still quite fundamental disagreement among scholars on how far we can regard the gospels as historically reliable and indeed on what the notion of historicity involves in this context or whether it really matters To thinking Christiansthis scholarly disagreement is a source of perplexity It may be true that the theology of the N T is a more important object for study than its historical details it is certainly the case that much of the past search for the historical Jesus has led into dead ends But despite the attempts of some to suggest otherwise the conviction remains that the Christian faith is closely and essentially tied up with the history of its founder figure so that the question of the historical value of the gospels cannot be dismissed and should not be left unanswered The Gospels Research Project of Tyndale House Cambridge of which the Gospel Perspectives series is the fruit was set up to look further into the historicity of Jesus question Preface

A Marginal Jew: The roots of the problem and the person John P. Meier,1991 In this definitive book on the real historical Jesus one of our foremost biblical scholars meticulously sifts the evidence of 2 000 years to portray neither a rural magician nor a figure of obvious power but a marginal Jew Textual Criticism and the Synoptic Problem in Historical Jesus Research Hyeon Woo Shin,2004 The criteria for originality priority and authenticity used in textual criticism the study of the Synoptic Problem and historical Jesus research share one basic similarity they were all designed to distinguish a prior tradition from its later developments All these areas of research investigate the transmission process which involves both preservation and alteration The sets of criteria used in one area are thus analogous to the sets of criteria used in the other two areas This assumption can be confirmed by observing numerous instances of such similarity in these sets of criteria On the basis of this assumption many other instances of similarity may be newly attained by adapting the set of criteria used in one area for use in the other two areas The sets of criteria for these three areas of research can be further generalized into a mother set of criteria which will provide us with a degree of methodological unification in these disciplines
