Farmers of Forty Centuries Franklin Hiram King, 1911

The Oxford Handbook of Early Modern European

History, 1350-1750 Hamish M. Scott, 2015 This Handbook re-examines the concept of early modern history in a European and global context. The term early modern has been familiar especially in Anglophone scholarship for four decades and is securely established in teaching, research, and scholarly publishing. More recently, however, the unity implied in the notion has fragmented, while the usefulness and even the validity of the term and the historical periodisation which it incorporates have been questioned. The Oxford Handbook of Early Modern European History 1350-1750 provides an account of the development of the subject during the past half century but primarily offers an integrated and comprehensive survey of present knowledge together with some suggestions as to how the field is developing. It aims both to interrogate the notion of early modernity itself and to survey early modern Europe as an established field of study. The overriding aim will be to establish that early modern is not simply a chronological label but possesses a substantive integrity. Volume I examines Peoples and Place, assessing structural factors such as climate, printing, and the revolution in information, social, and economic developments, and religion, including chapters on Orthodoxy, Judaism, and Islam.

The Song-Yuan-Ming Transition in

Chinese History Paul Jakov Smith, Richard von Glahn, 2020-03-23 This volume seeks to study the connections between two well-studied epochs in Chinese history: the mid-imperial era of the Tang and Song (ca. 800-1270) and the late-imperial era of the late Ming and Qing (1550-1900). Both eras are seen as periods of explosive change, particularly in economic activity, characterized by the emergence of new forms of social organization and a dramatic expansion in knowledge and culture. The task of establishing links between these two periods has been impeded by a lack of knowledge of the intervening Mongol Yuan dynasty (1271-1368). This historiographical black hole has artificially interrupted the narrative of Chinese history and bifurcated it into two distinct epochs. This book aims to restore continuity to that historical narrative by filling the gap between mid-imperial and late-imperial China. The contributors argue that the Song-Yuan-Ming transition, early twelfth through the late fifteenth century, constitutes a distinct historical period of transition and not one of interruption and devolution. They trace this transition by investigating such subjects as contemporary impressions of the period, the role of the Mongols in intellectual life, the economy of Jiangnan, urban growth, neo-Confucianism, and local society, commercial publishing, comic drama, and medical learning.
