Crohn's Disease and Colitis Artour Rakhimov,2013-10 Contemporary books internet

sources and articles on digestive problems Crohn s disease and ulcerative colitis including books written by medical doctors and nutritionists are full of myths and fantasies about causes and solutions to these digestive problems As a result of popular treatment methods people with GI problems are mainly busy with endless changes in their diet and the daily use of probiotics and other supplements These treatment programs are sometimes sprinkled with ideas of better chewing more physical exercise and other lifestyle changes In the long run since there are no criteria for normal or good digestion many of the recovered people will get the same and sometimes other symptoms some weeks or months later There are also no books and internet resources that provide even a list of specific signs of normal or ideal digestive health These signs do exist and they include such factors that are virtually never mentioned in the medical literature or sources related to alternative medicine

Signs of perfect digestion A person with normal digestive health does not require any toilet paper due to the absence of soiling i e no residue is left on the anus after a bowel movement Also bowel movements are regular and the feces do not produce any odor and do not leave marks on the toilet bowl If someone has inflammatory bowel disease they always require use of toilet paper and the degree of soiling generally correlates with the severity of their digestive problem Most ordinary people require toilet paper as well This is an indicator of their poor GI health A person with normal digestion is able to hold up to 1 liter 4 2 cups of urine in the urinary bladder while modern sources do not even mention frequent urination with reduced urinary volume as one of the key symptoms of active IBD The volume of urine accurately reflects the state of the GI system and degree of inflammation in people with IBD Normal digestion means that there is no need to regularly or perpetually consume pounds of yogurt probiotics and or any other fermented foods due to the continuous presence of good bacteria in the gut since the healthy immune system does not allow pathogens to reside on the surface of the gut and form biofilms All mentioned and other signs of good digestion relate to normalization of gut flora and the absence of pathological microbial films on the surface of the small intestine This is another key topic that is rarely discussed Formation of biofilms by pathogens is the norm in cases of inflammatory bowel disease These biofilms prevent absorption of nutrients and pollute the body with toxins Soiling means dominance of pathogens in the gut Soiling has a very simple cause directly related to biofilms In fact soiling indicates a dominance of common pathogens in the gut such as Candida Albicans and H Pylori Biofilms are created by sticky pathogens while good bacteria which favor the absence of soiling are unable to adhere to the surface of the gut The same sticky pathogens make one s stool greasy and leave marks on the walls of the toilet bowl Triggers of flare ups

Common triggers of GI flare ups in people with IBD include chemical triggers ranging from acids present in ordinary diets to spices and essential oils from toothpastes mechanical abdominal pressure due to poor posture and many more Tap water and most types of bottled water as well as non organic foods are common triggers of flareups The book provides a systematic review of these and many other hidden triggers and symptoms of ulcerative colitis and Crohn s disease since without knowledge of these factors it is impossible to heal the gut With this knowledge and avoidance of triggers most people with

IBD can achieve no soiling no need for toilet paper an a few days and clinical remission in 1 2 months Advanced
