Crossing the Gap Christopher Koch, 2013-07-01 A fascinating insight into a major Australian novelist's development this collection of pieces employs the memoir as springboard presenting us with reflections on literature and an analysis of Australia's changing place in the world over the author's lifetime a lifetime stretching from the British Empire of his childhood to the post colonial present Crossing the Gap the title piece of the collection has a particular topical interest dealing as it does with the shift from Empire to a new Asia Pacific consciousness His essays offer striking expositions of the emotions and ideas which have fuelled his fiction the Times Literary Supplement Reading the ruminations of Christopher Koch is a bit like going for a walk in the country at night beneath a full moon You are absorbed into the atmosphere and afterwards find no clear recollection of the earth having passed beneath your feet the Age No novelist has done more to capture Asia for the Australian imagination than Koch Greg Sheridan Foreign Editor the Australian Crossing the Gap Christopher J. Koch, 1993 Collection of essays that chart the author's development as a novelist and provide insight into his feelings about the place of Australia within the Asian Pacific region as evidenced in Across the Sea Wall 1965 and the 1979 NBC Banjo Award winning Year of Living Dangerously The reader is transported through India Indonesia London and San Francisco and presented with literary anecdotes yet the influence of the author's native Tasmania remains paramount First published in the UK in 1987 Encyclopedia of Post-Colonial Literatures in English Eugene Benson, 2004-11-30 Documents the history and development of Post colonial literatures in English together with English and American literature and includes original research relating to the literatures of some 50 countries and territories In more than 1 600 entries written by more than 600 internationally recognized scholars it explores the effect of the colonial and post colonial experience on literatures in English worldwide Crossing the Gap Christopher John Koch, 2014-05-08 A fascinating insight into a major Australian novelist's development this collection of pieces employs the memoir as springboard presenting us with reflections on literature and an analysis of Australia's changing place in the world over the author's lifetime a lifetime stretching from the British Empire of his childhood to the post colonial present Crossing the Gap the title piece of the collection has a particular topical interest dealing as it does with the shift from Empire to a new Asia Pacific consciousness His essays offer striking expositions of the emotions and ideas which have fuelled his fiction The Times Literary Supplement Reading the ruminations of Christopher Koch is a bit like going for a walk in the country at night beneath a full moon You are absorbed into the atmosphere and afterwards find no clear recollection of the earth having passed beneath your feet The Age No novelist has done more to capture Asia for the Australian imagination than Koch Greg Sheridan Foreign Editor The Australian Chinese in Australian Fiction, 1888-1988, Australian Literature Graham Huggan, 2007-09-27 The Oxford Studies in Postcolonial Literatures series offers stimulating and accessible introductions to definitive topics and key genres and regions within the rapidly diversifying field of postcolonial literary studies in English In a provocative contribution to the series Graham Huggan presents fresh readings of an outstanding sometimes deeply unsettling national literature whose writers and readers just as unmistakably belong to the wider world Australian literature is not the unique province of Australian readers and critics nor is its exclusive task to provide an internal commentary on changing national concerns Huggan's book adopts a transnational approach motivated by postcolonial interests in which contemporary ideas taken from postcolonial criticism and critical race theory are productively combined and imaginatively transformed Rejecting the fashionable view that Australia is not and never will be postcolonial Huggan argues on the contrary that Australian literature like other settler literatures requires close attention to postcolonial methods and concerns A postcolonial approach to Australian literature he suggests is more than just a case for a more inclusive nationalism it also involves a general acknowledgement of the nation's changed relationship to an increasingly globalized world As such the book helps to deprovincialize Australian literary studies Australian Literature also contributes to debates about the continuing history of racism in Australia a history in which the nation's literature has played a constitutive role as both product and producer of racial tensions and anxieties nowhere more visible than in the discourse it has produced about race both within and beyond the national context
