Catastrophe and Higher Education Jeffrey R. Di Leo,2020-12-11 This book asks what it means to live in a higher educational world continuously tempered by catastrophe Many of the resources for response and resistance to catastrophe have long been identified by thinkers ranging from Ralph Waldo Emerson and William James to H G Wells and Emanuel Haldeman Julius Di Leo posits that hope and resistance are possible if we are willing to resist a form of pessimism that already appears to be drawing us into its arms Catastrophe and Higher Education argues that the future of the humanities is tied to the fate of theory as a form of resistance to neoliberalism in higher education It also offers that the fate of the academy may very well be in the hands of humanities scholars who are tasked with either rejecting theory and philosophy in times of catastrophe or embracing it

The Fate of Liberal Arts in Today's Schools and Colleges William Hayes,2015-12-11 It is the purpose of this book to examine the ever changing meaning of the term liberal arts and to trace its development from antiquity to the present In doing so the text will compare and contrast the values of such an education with the other important objective of schools and colleges which is to prepare students with appropriate occupational training The book will highlight the arguments of both points of view In doing so attention will be paid to the contributions to society of those who have been exposed to a variety of educational curricula As part of the study the impact of the community college will be considered along with the impact of recent initiatives such as the Nation at Risk Report No Child Left Behind Race to the Top and the Common Core Finally the text will conclude with an attempt to suggest the direction that will determine the fate of liberal arts in schools and colleges
