Alvin Rides Again, 1974 Brisbane's Lost City Theatres Garry G Parsons, 2015-09-24 Going to the pictures as we said back in the day was a memorable childhood adventure because it meant either going to a big city cinema with our parents or watching a double feature at the local fleapit on a Saturday afternoon The latter brings back fond memories of rolling Jaffas down the aisles Admission was only 20 cents and for 10 cents you could buy a drink and a packet of potato chips But theatres have changed as has the way movies are presented Gone are the talented projectionists who dazzled us with real presentation skills This book is a photographic depiction of how theatres used to be and how some of us think they still should be Times have changed but we will always have our silver screen memories

Historical Dictionary of Australian and New Zealand Cinema Karina Aveyard, Albert Moran, Errol Vieth, 2017-12-26 Filmmakers have honed their skills and many have achieved critical and popular success at home and abroad as have actors and other crew American filmmakers and companies have found it cheaper to make films in Australia because wages and salaries are lower tax rebates have been attractive and the expertise in most areas of filmmaking is comparable to that of anywhere in the world At the same time Australian audiences still enjoy watching Australian films making some of them profitable even if this is a small profit when considered in Hollywood terms New Zealand filmmakers cast and crew have shown that they are equal to the world's best in making films with international themes while other films have shown that the world is interested in New Zealand narratives and settings Increased support for Maori filmmakers and stories has had a significant impact on production levels and on the diversity of stories that now reach the screen It has also helped create more viable career paths for those who continue to be based in their home country This second edition of Historical Dictionary of Australian and New Zealand Cinema contains a chronology an introduction and an extensive bibliography The dictionary section has over 700 cross referenced entries on leading films as well as many directors writers actors and producers It also covers early pioneers film companies genres and government bodies
