The Geopolitics of Region Building in the Black Sea Yannis Tsantoulis,2020-12-17 Offering theoretical insights on region building this book explores the attempts to formulate a political and institutional vision for the Black Sea region in the post 9 11 era and in the context of the enlargements of the EU and NATO It investigates in depth these attempts viewed as a failure by the key actors involved in order to understand how regions emerge in international politics as well as how and why they may fail to come into being To this end the book explores a range of factors that impacted region building in the Black Sea considering the role of region builders involved their practices and the context of their actions and the spatial representations and security discourses that were integral to the region building process

Hence attention is paid to how these factors both enabled and constrained the discursive construction of the Black Sea region thus identifying the elements that distinguish the Black Sea from other successful cases of region building Based on critical approaches towards international relations and political geography this book both expands and deepens the scope and understanding of regions and will thus appeal to academics and students in the fields of International Relations Security Studies Political Geography and Regional Integration

The Black Sea Between the EU and Russia Thomas Weihe, 2007

At once an energy corridor and gateway for trafficking and organized crime the Black Sea region is an area of burgeoning importance to the European Union Its frozen conflicts in Abkhazia South Ossetia and Transnistria are dangerous centers of instability in Europe's immediate neighborhood The Black Sea is also nearing the EU in purely geographic terms in 2007 its littoral states Romania and Bulgaria will join accession talks with Turkey have been opened Georgia and Ukraine have expressed interest in EU membership and are being discussed as possible candidates for a NATO enlargement The growing Western presence in the region has set off alarm bells in Russia which regards the Black Sea as its sphere of influence The prospect of NATO expanding poses a particularly acute threat of escalation Also Moscow's remarks that independence for Kosovo could serve as a precedence for the separatist frozen conflict regions are being seen as harbingers of future conflict EU and regional representatives have therefore counselled respect for Russia's interests around the Black Sea consideration of its objections and efforts to facilitate cooperation that would benefit all sides Does the EU need a Black Sea strategy If so what form should it take This 134th Bergedorf Protocol documents a meeting of senior politicians and experts from the region and EU states in Odessa who analyzed the situation and put forward policy options
