Interpreting Communicative Language Teaching Sandra J. Savignon, 2008-10-01 The emergence of English as a global language along with technological innovations and the growing need for learner autonomy is changing language teaching rapidly and profoundly With these changes come new demands and challenges for teaching education programs

This authoritative collection of writings highlights some of the best work being done today in the United States and abroad to make communicative competence an attainable goal. The contributors examine what has come to be known as communicative language teaching or CLT from the perspectives of teachers and teacher educators. The book documents current reform initiatives in Japan, the United States, Hong Kong, Taiwan, and continental Europe to provide a global perspective on language teaching for communicative competence. Four major themes recur throughout the volume: the multifaceted nature of language teaching, the highly contextualized nature of CLT, the futility of defining a native speaker in the postcolonial/postmodern world, and the overwhelming influence of high stakes tests on language teaching. The book is a useful and valuable tool for language teachers, teacher educators, and policymakers.

Communicative Language Teaching in Different Countries Parnaz Kianiparsa, 2015. The concept of language teaching methods has a long tradition in the field of English Language Teaching (ELT) and it has been affected by the rise and fall of different methods throughout its development. Richards and Renandya (2002) state that one of the most conventional approaches or methods of Foreign Language (FL) and Second Language (SL) teaching is Communicative Language Teaching (CLT), which was developed during the 1960s and 1970s based on Hymes (1972) and Canale and Swain's theories (1980) of language teaching referred to as Communicative Competence (CC).

Communicative Language Teaching Today Jack Croft, Richards, 2006. Storytelling and communicative language teaching Hasret Deliorman, 2009. Studienarbeit aus dem Jahr 2007 im Fachbereich Englisch Pädagogik/Didaktik Sprachwissenschaft, Note 1,3. Johann Wolfgang Goethe Universität Frankfurt am Main, Institut für England- und Amerikastudien. Veranstaltung: The Secret Formula Sprache Deutsch. Abstract: Nowadays it is necessary to be able to speak English because this language is getting more and more important and it is the basis of international communication. So pupils have to learn as early as possible to have a strong command of this language and to use it effectively. Communicative language teaching (CLT) emphasizes communicative skills and wants communicative practice at the centre of classroom learning. According to Savignone, communicative competence is the central theoretical concept of CLT (2004). She defines this competence with the terms of expressions, interpretation, and negotiation of meaning. Hedge says that it is important for CLT to encourage pupils to communicate their needs, ideas, and opinions and also that they are able to operate effectively in the real world (2000: 44-45). She writes that in the communicative language classroom pupils have to learn to use that language in certain settings and authentic situations. According to both authors, CLT helps to develop certain communicative skills and to come to terms with the language without any grave problems of expressing thoughts, wishes, opinions, etc. The language learner has to identify himself with that language so that he can apply his knowledge without any fear and uncertainty. And it is important that the teacher applies grammar-based exercises as an integral part of real-life tasks. Otherwise, the learners could get bored, deterred, or even overtaxed with grammatical units. Hedge claims too that a teacher's intervention to correct should be as minimal as possible (2000: 58). We can integrate grammatical units in activities where learners are supposed to talk about their next
