Meeting the Social and Emotional Needs of Gifted and Talented Children Michael J Stopper, 2013-12-19 First Published in 2000 The education of gifted and talented children is attracting increased interest and attention in schools LEAs and within government A widely accepted critical aspect of talent development has until now remained under represented namely that the principal factors underpinning all learning are social and emotional ones This book addresses the complex relationship between intellectual social and emotional development that is necessary for high achievement and personal fulfilment The contributors aim to provide relevant practical guidelines for secure and confident learning for pupils that will support teachers parents and others wishing to help translate potential into performance Ready, Willing, and Able Dagny D. Bloland, 2006 Differentiation is a goal for teachers who believe in meeting every child's needs through responsive teaching Gifted talented and exceptionally conscientious adolescents GTECs have needs very different from those of other students as well as from one another In Ready Willing and Able Dagny Bloland describes how to mix proven strategies for differentiation with innovative instruction to help GTECs make the most of their learning whether your classroom is officially labeled gifted advanced placement or honors or sprinkled with extra capable kids Teachers and administrators often fall back on the belief that especially capable students can essentially teach themselves that they don't need careful scaffolding and planning as much as other students do. Ready, Willing, and Able explodes that myth and replaces it with practical ideas about how to challenge academically talented teens. Boland helps you identify the types of students who enroll in honors, gifted, and accelerated classes, tells you what their needs typically include, and suggests ways to best use their diversity of skills and abilities for teaching and learning. Combining the basic tenets of gifted education with student-centered and learning-centered approaches to secondary English, she demonstrates how to create challenging curriculum in reading, literature, writing, language, and discussion while also providing guidelines for assessment and yes, grading. With innovative instruction, a solid grounding in smart, progressive educational practice, and years of experience, Dagny Boland shows you that teaching high-capacity, high-willingness students requires a careful consideration of your teaching and an equally careful consideration of their needs. Because when it comes to GTEC students, you've got to be as Ready, Willing, and Able as they are to discover the educational heights they can reach.

Applied Practice for Educators of Gifted and Able Learners Hava E. Vidergor, Carole Ruth Harris, 2015-07-21. This book is a comprehensive study and guide for the classroom teacher, the gifted program coordinator, and the graduate student who are challenged daily to provide for individual children who differ markedly but come under the umbrella of giftedness. It serves as a wellspring that derives from theory while it offers practical application of theoretical construct in a wide variety of international settings from leaders in the field who demonstrate implementation of proven and field-tested techniques and alternative scenarios to accommodate every classroom situation. Contributors are internationally recognized experts who have come together to provide a sound, reliable source for teachers of the gifted that will be utilized time and time again by practitioners and researchers alike. Among internationally renowned scholars are Joyce Van Tassel Baska, Susan Johnsen June Maker, Belle Wallace, Linda Kreger Silverman, Dorothy Sisk, Gillian Eriksson, Miraca Gross, Gilbert Clark, Enid Zimmerman, and Rachel McAnallen.
